MARKET REPORTS.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE, Tuesday.—This attendance of the trade in evidence, and quite a trifling business of mere retail nature passing. Some new samples of grain are expected on Friday's market, and no doubt good bulking oats will command satisfactory prices. Canadians are not giving general satisfaction so far.

I BUY OATS.—A. H. Smith, 10 Burgh quay, Dublin.—(Advt.)

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES.—BALTIC, Tuesday.—WHEAT quiet, unaltered regarding free cargoes, but Government offerings were advanced 1/- per quarter for winters. Of free Barusso 62½lbs. loading sellers 77/-, Baril 62lbs. afloat 77/6, Pacific afloat 72/-, No. 1 Northern Manitoba October-November 73/-. Parcels easier; No. 1 Northern Manitoba September sold 82/6, No. 2 hard winter July-August 69/- per 480lbs. MAIZE quiet for cargoes; Plate steamers afloat sellers 45/6 to 46/- and forward 45/-, Dan.-Gal.-Fox. afloat 45/6, Bess. do. 47/3, Nos. 1 and 2 white flat African expected to load 15th August 44/6. Parcels steady; Plate June-July sellers 44/-, July-August 43/7½ per 480lbs. BARLEY quieter; cargoes of Dan.-Bess.-Kust. August-15th September sellers 47/- per 400lbs., and Californian August-September and September-October 53/-, with parcels of do. September-October 52/- per 448lbs. OATS quiet; Plate afloat June-July and July-August quoted 30/-, No. 2 Canadian Western July-August 35/-, No. 3 do. 34/- per 320lbs.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—The Royal Commission have raised prices of all winter wheat 1/- per quarter, but others unchanged. C.i.f. parcels of free WHEAT partially dearer, No. 1 Manitoba October-November selling at 72/-, No. 2 hard winter just sailed 70/-, arrived at 71/- and 72/- to Liverpool, and No. 2 hard winter arrived Manchester at 72/- per quarter. MAIZE—C.i.f. parcels River Plate afloat, per Sicily and Lombardy, sold at 44/6, and per Burgundy 45/-, while American fresh shelled August-September realised 42/- per quarter. Wheat on the spot ruled quiet, but held for late rates. Maize—Spot parcels of American mixed were easier owing to freer arrivals, but a better business was reported. Other descriptions showed no alteration. FLOUR moved but moderately at recent currencies. Beans and peas firm on extreme scarcity. OATS firmly held, but buyers operated less freely. Oatmeal steady, but little business reported. Mill offals scarce, and held for further enhanced prices. Graded red wheat futures were quiet throughout, and business confined to five loads October at 14/5¼, or 1/- decline per cent., and this price closing value. Yellow River Plate maize options were ½d. dearer at the outset, but afterwards reacted on freer offerings, the market closing quiet, and ½d. to 1d. per cental lower on the day.

CATTLE.

BIRMINGHAM, Tuesday.—Only a moderate show of pigs, with business not very active. Bacon pigs and cutters, 25/6 per score, dead weight, and sows taken very sparingly at 18/- per score, dead weight.

LEEDS, Tuesday.—On offer—311 beasts, 1/- to 1/5 per lb.; sheep 1,336 10d to 1/7; lambs, 1/8 to 1/10 per lb; dairy cows, 2, from £35 to £45 each.

SALFORD, Tuesday.—Supply of fat cattle consisted of chiefly Irish beasts of fair average quality, and trade was better, bullocks and heifers realising 80/-, 74/-, and 66/- per live cwt. for first, second, and third qualities respectively, and fat cows 67/-, 60/-, and 50/- per live cwt. for first, second, and third qualities respectively. The supply of fat sheep and lambs consisted of Irish, North Country, and Welsh animals. Sheep realised 1/- to 1/5 per lb., and fat lambs 1/6 to 1/8 per lb. Numbers on offer—Cattle 807, sheep and lambs 7,893.

DERBY, Tuesday.—Good supply of fat cattle, first quality, however, being in very short supply. Trade for the best animals was slightly firmer, but prices, on the whole, are unchanged at 9d. to 16d. per lb. Fat sheep made from 9d. to 12d., and fat lambs 20d. per lb. Veal calves realised 9d. to 12d. per lb., while bacon pigs and porkers were rather dearer, realising 17/9 and 18/3 per 14lb. stone respectively.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Tuesday.—Smaller supply of fat cattle, 595 being on offer against 755 last week. Trade firmer at unchanged prices, first quality cattle averaging 19/-, other sorts 16/- to 17/6, and the best fat cows 14/6 per 14lbs. stone. Smaller supply of fat sheep and lambs, 4,895 being penned. Trade firmer, the best sheep making 1/5 to 1/8, ewes 8d. to 11d., and fat lambs 1/5 to 1/8 per lb. The 40 calves on offer realised 1/1 per lb., while bacon pigs and porkers met an unchanged trade at 15/- and 18/- per 14lbs. stone respectively.

THE STRATHMORE AUCTION CO., LTD.—Glasgow, Monday, July 25th, 1921.—We had increased supplies of Irish cattle, sheep, and lambs, and, with a better attendance of buyers, prices improved by from 2/- to 3/- per cwt. for cattle and about 5/- per head on sheep and lambs. Best bullocks and heifers made from 72/- to 77/- per cwt., live weight, and approaching 80/- for A.A. crosses; secondary, 62/- to 70/-; young cows and bulls, 48/- to 58/-; others, 38/- to 45/; sheep, 1/3 to 1/6 per lb., dead; lambs, 1/- to 1/4 per lb., dead.—(Advt.)

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—The quiet feeling in the BACON market here continues in all departments, American advices failing to lend encouragement, and buyers show little disposition to operate. There is little quotable change in value of American selections, long clear from relative scarcity being raised 1/- to 2/- per cwt., and now quoted 124/- to 130/-. Bellies are only in moderate request, with Wiltshires backs and Cumberlands still quietly steady. HAMS again rule firm, and find ready absorptions at recent full prices. Shoulders quiet for squares, and partially 2/- lower at 116/- to 118/-, but picnics steady, with a moderate inquiry at late rates. Irish bacon a little more plentiful, especially heavy weights, and a further reduction in value is looked for in the near future. Danish and Dutch quiet, and prices reduced 3/- and 5/- per cwt. respectively. LARD on the spot is quiet, and about 1/- per cwt. lower. CHEESE in only moderate request, and with free arrivals holders are easy sellers. BUTTER slow of sale, and purchases can be made on easier terms, though late prices are repeated. EGGS quietly steady.

PATRICK KEHOE, Ltd., Irish Bacon Curers and Lard Refiners. Importers of American Provisions. (Estd. 100 years.)—103 FRANCIS ST., DUBLIN.—(Advt.)

REFINED LARD FUTURES—LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—The decline in Chicago had already been discounted here, though initial transactions were 3d. under last night. A good demand, however, was afterwards experienced, and prices gradually improved, and at the end of the morning session showed about 9d. per cwt. advance. September sold at 87/3, 88/3, 88/-, 88/3, and October 87/3 to 88/3; but July was neglected and easier at 86/- buyers, 87/- sellers, and cash lard ex quay offered at 87/- per cwt. Influenced by stronger afternoon cables, values improved considerably, but failed to finish at the best, though still showing a gain of 1/3 to 1/6 per cwt. on the day. Sales—September 89/6, 89/-; October 89/3, 88/9, while 87/6 was bid for current month.

MANCHESTER, Tuesday.—BACON—The demand has quietened down, and both Canadian and American were easier, with Irish about steady, and Danish moving off rather slowly. LARD quiet, with refined quoted from 89/- to 90/-. CHEESE generally favoured buyers with spot prices unchanged. New Zealand white 136/- to 137/-, with coloured 4/- less. EGGS—Arrivals of Irish were fairly good and realised 24/- to 25/6, Danish ranging from 26/- to 28/6. The demand for BUTTER was quiet, the higher prices tending to check the inquiry. Danish quoted 265/- to 270/- and Irish creameries 250/- to 255/- per cwt.

DUBLIN VEGETABLE, Tuesday.—Market continues to be abundantly supplied with seasonable varieties of fruit and vegetables, home grown and imported. The offtake, too, keeps well in touch generally with a steady sell up. The heavy supplies of tomatoes, English, Dutch, and native, has virtually broken the market, and brought the values, temporarily at least, down near zero. With regard to tomatoes, it is pleasing to be able to announce a new enterprise in our midst. The Dublin Tomato Company, having put up very extensive glasshouses at Crumlin, Co. Dublin, hope to keep up a regular supply. They consigned over 300 baskets of tomatoes to Mr. N. J. King for sale this morning, which realised 10/- to 11/- per 12lb., a fine price on a glutted market. Average Irish tomatoes, 8d. to 10d., extra 1/- per lb.; English, 8d. to 9d.; Dutch, 6/- to 7/- per 12lb.; Australian apples, 30/- to 35/- per case; Irish, 3/- to 6/6 per tray; dessert, 7/-; French plums, 28/- to 30/- per half-bushel; English Rivers, 27/- to 30/-; gooseberries, best, 7/- to 11/- and 13/- per half-bushel, etc., and 4/- to 6/- per tray; raspberries, 1/2 to 1/11 per punnet; logan, 1/- to 1/6 ditto; peaches, 10/- to 22/- per dozen; secondary, 3/- to 5/- and 6/-; Nectarines, 3/6 to 7/-; cherries, 10d. to 1/8 per lb.; red currants, 6d. to 8d.; black, 8d. to 9d. per lb.; home grapes, 2/6 to 5/6 per lb.; melons, 5/6 to 6/3 per dozen; selected, 15/-; cases of 24, 25/- to 28/-; 36's, 28/- to 34/-; French pears, 15/- to 18/- per case, 48; rhubarb, 3/- to 9/- per dozen bundles; carrots, 1/6 to 2/6 ditto; cucumbers, 4/- to 6/- and 10/- per dozen; kidney beans, 6d to 8d. per lb.; broad beans, 1/6 to 3/- per half-bushel; York cabbage, 45/- to 54/-, extras, 75/- and 85/- per load; white turnips, 5d. to 9d., and extras 1/- to 2/- per bundle; salad, 1/- to 1/9, 2/6, and 3/- per dozen; beet, 5d. to 6d.; cauliflowers, 6/- to 8/-; seconds, 3/- to 4/6 per dozen; onions, 10d. to 1/6 per bundle; vegetable marrows, 4/- to 10/- and 16/- per dozen; peas, 4/- to 4/6 per float; parsley, 1/3 to 2/- per tray.

DUBLIN POTATO, Tuesday.—Supplies of potatoes remain much under usual offerings at this season, but enough for consumptive requirements, which are also below normal. Prices are unaltered at 14/- per cwt. for Epicures and 15/- for British Queens. Latter are coming in in more satisfactory size and order. Recent rains, however, has exercised very little benefit on present or early marketable crops; but Maincrop potatoes have been considerably improved, and now promise good and weighty results. The substantially lower prices ruling in England as compared with currencies here for potatoes continue to be much commented upon by retailers and consumers.

HALSTON STREET POULTRY, Tuesday.—Supplies of chickens, ducks, and old fowl continue sufficient, but market exhibits a hardening tone, particularly on useful sizes fleshy chickens. In view of Horse Show and race meetings in second week of August there should be a big influx of visitors to Dublin, and consequent appreciable stir in the business and stability of this market. Choice chickens rate at 1/9 per lb., dead; pullets, 4/- to 5/- each. Prime heavy hens, 3/- to 4/- each; others, 2/- to 2/6. Prime, fat, big framed ducks, 5/- to 6/-; medium ditto, 4/-; stores, 2/6 to 3/6; old ducks, 1/6 to 2/-; strictly fresh rabbits wanted at 1/4; grazers, 2/- to 16/- per dozen. Young pigeons, 1/6. The wild bird season, due to open 1st prox., may again be affected by the "no gun" circumstances.

DUBLIN FISH, Tuesday.—Fair supply of salmon (26 boxes) and lobsters (16 chests) came in, but very little trawl, and a small local hook take only to deal with. Howth herrings and mackerel are mostly passing through middle dealers to hawkers at 14/- to 18/- per 120. Good inquiry for fresh fish. Salmon averaged 2/- to 2/8 per lb.; grilse, 1/8 to 2/2; trout, 1/- to 1/8 per lb.; lobsters, firsts, 10/- to 15/- per 13, seconds, 5/- to 7/6, smalls, 2/- to 4/- per 13; best soles, 25/- to 40/- per 9 pairs; mediums, 20/- to 25/-; slips, 10/- to 15/- per 9 pairs; plaice scarce; codfish, 45/- to 50/- per half box; 50 boxes herrings, 22/6 to 33/-; 30 mackerel, 12/6 to 22/6.

BILLINGSGATE FISH, Tuesday.—Supply fair; quiet demand. Salmon, 28d. to 37d.; grilse, 25d. to 32d.; soles, 14d. to 19d.; slips, 12d. to 18d. per lb.; live eels, 20/- to 40/-; dead, 15/- to 30/- per draft; turbot and brill, 7/- to 10/-; plaice, 8/- to 10/-; halibut, 8/- to 9/6; lemon soles, 8/- to 11/-; cod, 6/- to 7/-; whiting, 3/-; hake, 5/- to 7/-; bream, 3/-; haddock, 3/- to 5/- per stone.

LITTLE GREEN, Tuesday.—The serious check in consumptive trade, due to sharp advance in values recently, has caused some reaction in prices for butter, and supplies are again freer. First quality creams, 2/4½ per lb., and good seconds, 2/2½ to 2/3½; inferior and over-water percentage around 2/1. First grade factories, 2/2 per lb., and good third, 2/- to 2/0½, and middling, 1/11. Farmers' butter, 1/8 to 1/9 and 2/- for best qualities. In egg branch, large fresh produce is on scarce side, but ordinary descriptions in fair supply. For best trade rates are firmer, but smalls and stale irregular. Reliable case arrivals from known senders, 23/6 to 25/9 per 120; extra selected and repacked, 26/- to 27/- per 120; ordinary case arrivals, 21/- to 22/6; country smalls, 19/- to 20/6; stale, etc., 15/- to 18/6 per 120. Duck eggs scarcely quotable just now.

CORK BUTTER, Tuesday.—Firsts, 170/-; fresh butter, 181/- per cwt.

LONDON POTATO, Tuesday.—Liberal supplies encountered slow trade. Epicures quoted at 8/- to 9/-, Eclipse, also Sharp's Express, 9/- to 10/- per cwt. Peas scarce, and prices very firm, best Yorkshire blues ruling at 36/- to 38/- per bag, and 18/- to 19/- per half-bag, though inferior and wasty samples are offered at less money.

PRODUCE.

LONDON, Tuesday.—SUGAR—A good demand continued and market ruled firm. Lyle's granulated 59/- to 59/3, yellow crystals 53/6; American granulated spot 58/7½. Term market quiet. COFFEE—There is a steady demand for the finer qualities at recent rates. Common quiet. TEA—The market for Indian descriptions is firm, but Ceylon meets with comparatively quiet support, as quality in general is far from attractive. RICE firm, and business at the moment confined to second-hand parcels, which offer at prices under those quoted by shippers. Bran firm, quiet. Beans firm. JUTE—General trade remains quiet, but prices steady in absence of any pressure to sell. Hessians and twills in poor support on about former terms. HEMP—Manila again reservedly offered and market very firm. New Zealand slow. SHELLAC quiet all round; T.N. spot 300/-, August 235/-, October 220/- per cwt. COPRA irregular. RUBBER market dull and featureless. Plantation standard crepe spot sold 9d., August-October sellers 9½d., October-December sold 9½d., January-March sellers 10¼d.; smoked ribbed sheet spot sold 8½d., September 8½d., October-December 9¼d., January-March 10d.; fine hard Para spot 11d., ball 6½d. per lb. OILS—Linseed somewhat irregular; spot naked 39/9. Rape—Crude spot 56/-, refined 64/-. Turpentine—American spot 90/- per cwt. Petroleum and rosin unaltered. OILSEEDS—Linseed firm. Rapeseed steady. Cottonseed steady.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—TALLOW continues steady, but quiet, and little business of interest recorded.

LIVERPOOL AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE, Tuesday.—Prices ruled firm at to-day's market, and a better demand for farm produce was experienced. Potatoes—Epicures realised 9/- to 11/-; Kidneys, 14/- to 15/-; Ninetyfold 12/6; May Queens, 4/6 per 21lbs. Carrots, 13/-; swedes, 12/- per cwt.; lettuce, 2/-; cucumbers, 6/- to 9/-; cabbages, 2/6 to 3/6; cauliflowers, 4/- to 5/- per doz.; peas, 10/- to 13/-; beans, 5/6 per hamper; hay, new, 8/3; old, 5/- to 6/-.

CLYDE CRUSHED SUGAR, Tuesday.—Official Report—Market very firm; good business doing.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DUBLIN, Tuesday.—There was a somewhat narrower supply of hay brought on market here to-day. For some reason Co. Kildare and Meath arrivals were conspicuously moderate. Choice first crop hay scarce, and generally 3d. to 6d. per cwt. dearer, but no quotable change can be recorded in medium strong and old meadow classes of hay generally. Straw tolerably plentiful, and in disappointing demand at uncertain terms. Choice first crop hay went freely at 7/6 and occasionally 7/9 and 8/- per cwt.; second and third crop, 6/4 to 7/- and 7/3; old meadow hay, 5/- to 6/- and 6/3; wheaten straw, 4/- to 4/6 and 4/9; oaten, 3/6 to 4/6, 4/9, and 5/- per cwt. (one or two early sales perhaps more).

LONDON, Tuesday.—Supplies quite adequate for the quiet trade in force; late rates maintained, with a hardening tendency. BANTAM-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP.

A Brooklyn telegram, dated Monday, states:—Pete Herman to-night out-pointed J. Lynch in fifteen rounds, thus regaining the bantam-weight championship. From the first bell Herman carried the battle to Lynch, and had the better of thirteen rounds. One round went to Lynch, and another was even. Herman whipped rights and lefts effectively to the head and body, and when Lynch frequently made sallies Herman met him toe to toe. Throughout the fight Herman was finding his mark accurately, and Lynch was endeavouring to land a knock-out. Each man weighed 116½lb.

SPORTING NEWS.

GOODWOOD.

STEWARDS' CUP SURPRISE.
SERVICE KIT WINS AT 20 TO 1.
THE FAVOURITES ROUTED.

CHICHESTER, TUESDAY.

No doubt, much of the success of Goodwood is due to the Royal patronage bestowed upon it, but there are incidents connected with its management that would hardly be tolerated at an ordinary meeting, and the lack of telegraphic facilities is severly felt by all. The King took a keen interest in the racing, which he watched from the Duke of Richmond's private stand, but the Royal colours were not sported. They will, however, be seen out later in the week.

Though no longer a medium of much early speculation, the Stewards' Cup is still one of the most popular sprint events of the season. Glanmerin, despite having had much more to carry than last year, remained the popular fancy. There are few handsomer horses in training, and the paddock inspection revealed that he had not been standing still since Ascot. The stable estimate before the race was that he was some 35lb. in front of Santaquest, who had run so prominently in the Victoria Cup, and when it was known he had drawn the rails position he was in greater demand than ever.

Nothing was near him at the start, and his colours were very conspicuous as he came bounding down the hill. From the stands it seemed as though he would win, but with a furlong to go, Service Kit drew out, and his success was assured. The unlucky horse, if ever there was an unlucky horse, was Tete-a-Tete, who lost several lengths at the start by backing away from the tapes.

Interviewed, Donoghue, who rode the defeated favourite, said—"No, I have no excuse to make. Glanmerin got away all right and was going well to commence with, but he simply had too much weight, and that explains his defeat." This exactly coincides with my reading of the race.

Service Kit had run prominently for six furlongs in the Royal Hunt Cup, and at a difference of 8lb. he now very easily reversed first position with Glanmerin, but his failure meanwhile to make any real show in a welter race at Alexandra Park has misled most people. Service Kit had shown useful form when in the late Mr. Pat Hartigan's stable. This is the first race he has won for his present owner, Mr. Baylis, a well-known member of the Ring, who secured the horse cheaply enough when he was weeded out of the Ogbourne stable.

The brothers Joel had matters much their own way in the juvenile events, Mr. Jack Joel's Stupidity repeating her Liverpool success in the Ham Stakes, in which her only opponent was Mr. Sol Joel's Pondoland. Fodder, in the latter's colours, cleverly got the better of Lembach in the Richmond Stakes, but Gask beat the brothers' combination in the Gratwicke Stakes. Amongst jockeys' mounts for the second day are—Bullock—Brotherhood, Corsage, Parella, Plymstock, and Irish Cousin; Cooper—Tagrag. Shatwell—Granard and Miss Dashwood. Smyth—Strathleven.

SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

CHICHESTER, TUESDAY NIGHT.

The only blot—if such the success of Service Kit can be termed—upon a very nice afternoon's racing was the inexplicably easy victory of such an animal as Service Kit in the race for the Stewards' Cup, which occasioned much comment. The Goodwood Plate will be one of the most important events to-morrow, but it will not attract as large a field as was expected, and I shall leave the issue to CHARLEVILLE.

For the other events my selections are as follow:—

Sussex Stakes—Sunblaze; if absent, Plymstock.
Selling Sweepstakes—Venezelos; if absent, Chilminar.
Findon Stakes—Inns of Court.
King George Stakes—Tetratema.
Singleton Handicap—Parella or Versatile.
Levant Stakes—Spike Island.

Without appreciable delay, a good start was effected, Varzy being the quickest to get going; but Orby's Pride settled down in front of Nightwing, Dissolved, and Glanmerin. Then came Princess of Mars and Tetrameter. Half-way Princess of Mars took up the running, and she came on clear of Glanmerin, Service Kit, and Orby's Pride. BALLINA MEETING—YESTERDAY.

Fields were necessarily small at Ballina yesterday, the hard ground and the distance of the venue being alike responsible. The small number of runners, however, did not affect the sporting character of the popular Western meeting, and, in pleasant weather conditions, a huge crowd enjoyed the proceedings, which were very interesting. A feature of the running was the success attending horses hailing from the Brize (Claremorris) stable, which is so capably managed by P. Cannon, who sent out the winner of the first three races, and also of the last event. East Mayo drew right away from his solitary opponent, Dowdstown, in the Town Plate, and Globe accounted for the Tally-Ho Plate, after an interesting set-to with the one-time useful Swordknot. Then Diploma made the whole of the running in the Maiden Steeplechase, beating a better-backed candidate in Windfield. Olivenna supplemented her Tuam score by winning the Ladies' Plate, and proceedings wound up with the Mayo Plate, which fell to Meadowside. Details:—

ROVER MOTOR CAR'S RECORD.

Few motor cars in open competitions have been so successful this year as the 8 h.p. air-cooled Rover. In the recent six days' Scottish reliability trials this make of car gained four gold medals, one silver medal, and also the team prize for the best performance. The trials extended over a distance of more than 900 miles of the most mountainous portion of Scotland, and the manner in which the 8 h.p. air-cooled Rover tackled such famous hills as Amulree has called forth unstinted praise.

POLO.

ALL-IRELAND CLUB.

The A.I.P.C. had a big turn out of players at the Phœnix Park ground yesterday, and after several hard practice chukkars had been indulged in, Ramblers and Wanderers, two well-equipped sides, contested six chukkars. The ground was in capital order, and a fast game resulted in a win for Ramblers by two goals.

RAMBLERS, 5; WANDERERS, 3.

The sides were well mounted and evenly balanced. Wanderers got down at the start, and, following some exchanges at close range, Mr. Meyrick opened the scoring. The others replied almost at once, and they were level at the bell. The second chukkar opened with a hit out by Ramblers. Major Godman carried the ball beyond the half-way line, but Mr. Meyrick got on at the boards, and, galloping away on his own, scored a grand goal. A free for a "safety" gave Ramblers a chance, and Captain Rogerson hit through from close range. Ramblers were thrown back early in the third chukkar, but Major Godman eased the pressure, and, following some exchanges at midfield, Colonel Pilkington put his side into the lead. This advantage, however, was lost in the next minute, Wanderers hitting through from close range. Both sides tried hard for the lead in the fourth chukkar, but the board was unaltered at the change of ponies. Major Godman missed an easy shot in the fifth period, which was also "drawn blank." Ramblers had the better of some hard exchanges in the last "eight," and Colonel Pilkington scored twice.

Teams:—

Ramblers—Mr. Malcolm, Capt. Rogerson, Colonel Pilkington, and Major Godman (back).

Wanderers—Mr. C. Frith, Mr. Meyrick, Mr. Lithgow, and Mr. Douglas (back).

Umpire—Mr. James Daly.

There will be no play to-day.

OPEN CUP WEEK.

It is expected that there will be several English entries for the Open Cup Tournament, which will be held during Horse Show Week, and, probably, one or two well-known American players will assist one of the cross-Channel teams.

A.I.P.C.

A Committee meeting of the All-Ireland Club will be held in the pavilion on Saturday at 5.30 p.m.

A Paris telegram, dated Tuesday, states:—At Lannemezan, in Hautes Pyrenees, a family of four who were working in the fields were all struck by lightning, the mother and the son being killed, and the father and the daughter badly burned.

THE IRISH RAILWAYS AND DECONTROL.

Sir David Harrel, formerly Under-Secretary for Ireland; Mr. D. M. Wilson, K.C.; and Mr. John Mackie, chartered accountant, have agreed to act as a tribunal for the distribution of the sum of £3,000,000 arranged by the Government and the Irish railway companies as the amount due to the latter up to the date of de-control.*

The Government and Ireland.

Yesterday in the House of Commons Mr. Austen Chamberlain outlined the proposed course of business with a view to prorogation before the end of August. The House must be content to endure late hours and to treat certain measures—the Licensing Bill, for instance—as uncontroversial if they are to be passed at all. The Bills which must become law before the House can rise include the unpopular Safeguarding of Industries Bill and the English Railways Bill. The de-control of the railways of Great Britain, which is fixed for August 15th, depends upon the passing of the latter measure. Mr. Chamberlain said that a similar necessity existed in the case of the Irish Railways Bill; but here a peculiar situation has arisen. The financial resolution in connection with this Bill was to have been taken yesterday. The Labour Party raised objections, however, and the resolution was postponed for a week. It is now suggested that the Bill may be carried over to a new session; but, in that event, how could the Government fulfil its undertaking to release the Irish railways from control on the 15th August? Apparently, the Labour Party's motive is the protection of the interests of certain Irish railway servants. Has it given any thought to the position in which all Irish railway servants will find themselves if payment of the £3,000,000 which the Bill guarantees to the Irish companies is delayed beyond the middle of next month? We think that the companies ought to insist on a plain statement from the Government and ought to tell the Irish public exactly what will happen if the Bill does not become law without further delay. There is no conceivable case for any sort of preferential treatment of the wealthier railways of Great Britain.

There is a prospect that Parliament may be summoned to a new session in November or December for the ratification of the details of an Irish settlement. Mr. Chamberlain welcomed that prospect with a satisfaction which will be shared by the vast majority of his fellow-countrymen. The Government's proposals to Mr. de Valera comprise only the broad outlines of a settlement. If they are accepted, it is improbable that the agreed scheme will be ripe for legislation before the closing months of the present year. If the Government's proposals are rejected—it is hateful even to speculate on such a possibility—the Republican Party's decision is likely to be known within the next three or four weeks. Parliament still would be sitting and would learn the Government's plans for the handling of the lamentable situation that must be the outcome of rejection. Naturally and properly, Mr. Chamberlain made no suggestion that the Cabinet of Sinn Fein should hasten its decisions in order to meet the convenience of the Imperial Parliament. The issues at stake are of the most vital character. This is a case where raw haste might prove to be half-sister not merely to delay, but to disaster. It is evident that Mr. de Valera and his colleagues are giving the most careful, deliberate, and anxious thought to the Government's proposals. That is their right and their duty, and the country's duty is to possess its soul in patience. We hope, however, that, by agreement between the Cabinet and Mr. de Valera, the text of the Government's proposals will be published immediately. There are two strong arguments in favour of such a course. In the first place, the country is being perplexed by "forecasts" which, as Mr. Lloyd George has told us, are generally inaccurate. In the next place, it is entitled to form its own judgment on the merits of the Government's latest, and, perhaps, final, overture of peace.

Mr. Chamberlain explained that, if an Irish settlement were reached, the session which began in November or December would be continued, after the Christmas holiday, as the regular session of 1922. He did not discuss the possible intervention of a general election; but we may hazard a guess that he had it in "the back of his mind." It is, indeed, very probable that the fate of the Irish peace movement may decide the duration of the present Parliament, which is tired and past its prime. The solidity of the Coalition is being threatened on the one side by discontented Unionists and on the other by disappointed Liberals. There is a general feeling that Mr. Lloyd George is contemplating a new "orientation" at the first favourable opportunity. Ireland may provide him with that opportunity. If a settlement is reached on the basis of the Government's proposals, it will be the biggest and most popular thing that the Government has done in its whole history. Mr. Lloyd George rightly will get a large share of the credit, for much will have been due to his courage and imagination. The prestige of such success would be an excellent omen for victory at the polls, and Mr. Lloyd George almost certainly would be tempted to seize the occasion for an appeal to the country. On the other hand, if the Irish negotiations fail on account of Irish insistence on the full Republican demand, and if any section of the Labour Party supports that demand, the threatened integrity of the Empire will furnish Mr. Lloyd George with the most powerful appeal to the electors that ever has fallen to the lot of a British statesman. We shall not pursue that point now, for all our hopes and prayers are for an early settlement. We believe, however, that the coming months will decide great issues not only in Irish, but in English, politics.

Pompeii.

Throughout the war the work of excavating the ruins of Pompeii—of resuscitating, as it were, not the soul of Rome, but a piece of Rome itself—has proceeded with scarcely an interruption. Rome gave so much to the world, yet perished with so much still ungiven, that not a stone or a coin, not a fresco or graven tablet, that is unearthed but may have carried hidden through the centuries some new gift of knowledge or beauty for our enrichment. Eighteen hundred and forty-two years ago the rich and thronging town of Pompeii was whelmed in lava and pumice-stone as a man of science might plunge a beetle in spirits of wine. For nearly eighteen hundred years no hand was stretched forth, save that of the occasional vandal, to restore the buried treasure to posterity. During the last forty-four years, however, the work has been proceeding slowly, but steadily, and The Times now gives us an account of the results of recent excavations on the north side of the town. To the layman the greatest appeal will naturally lie, not in the frescoes and altars, the temples and palaces, but in the things that show the Roman to have been very much the same sort of citizen, doing much the same sort of thing, as himself. To him the discovery of a Roman bar, or thermopolium, complete with wine jars and a furnace and cauldron, will be a real revelation of man's unchanging interests in life. By way of heightening the effect of modernity and proving that the modern European is a true son of his Roman father, the walls of this bar are covered with election posters. One of them urges the thoughtless revellers to vote for a certain Lollius for the job of street commissioner. Municipal politics are not, perhaps, the thing for which the world feels most indebted to the Romans; but we have only to think of the centuries of barbarous ignorance and unbridled violence that intervened between this manifestation of a well regulated democracy and its reappearance two thousand years later, in order to appreciate how really civilised the Romans were—and, incidentally, how swiftly and completely the amenities, if not the spirit, of civilisation can be wiped out by ignorance and intolerance. The Romans were a great, active-minded, industrious, and comfort-loving people. They harried the earth for the means to live intelligently; but they always gave of the fruits of their own genius in exchange for what they took. Rome gave herself to the world and the world gave her in exchange Pompeii, the place of a thousand delights.

Russian Chaos.

Will the great famine which is raging in Russia mark the end of Bolshevism? Between Moscow and Petrograd, the area in which the Communists hold undisputed sway, the towns are besieged by starving hordes, whose cry for bread is a greater danger to the Republic than all the attacks that ever were launched by the White Guards. The Bolshevist rulers recognise the danger, but cannot cope with it. The famine is due, in part, to their misrule; for the peasants refused to exert themselves when they could not sell their produce in the open market, and the badly tilled soil became unfruitful. Powerless to feed their subjects, the Red Oligarchs cannot even agree upon a common plan of action. Some wish to issue an appeal to the world, backed by "concessions" to capitalism; others say that Russia must perish before Bolshevism's sacred principles are broken. For the moment Lenin's astuteness has made his position fairly safe. He has induced Trotsky to become "chief dictator" to deal with famine and disease, in the hope, apparently, that the people's wrath may descend chiefly upon him. In accepting the post Trotsky has made a bold attempt to regain popularity among the non-military masses of the population. He has declared himself an opponent of that most hated institution of Soviet Russia—the Extraordinary Committee and its branch organisations. He alleges that it has constantly ignored the military authorities, and demands that all its agents who refuse to recognise the supremacy of the Army commanders shall be shot without trial. The Extraordinary Committee has not been slow to retaliate. Dzerjinsky, its chairman, has issued a manifesto in which he accuses Trotsky of having surrounded himself with reactionaries whose one object is to undermine the Communist régime. These recriminations will bring small comfort to the starving millions. Russia's future has become darker than ever. Lenin may move towards true democracy and emerge from the ordeal as chief of a small Russian State; but it seems to be inevitable that the greater part of the country will relapse into sheer barbarism.

A Hard Case.

The curious case of Mrs. Gooding, of Littlehampton, is a reminder that justice sometimes stumbles. Last December she was convicted at Lewes Assizes of having published certain libellous postcards, and was sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment. In March she was found guilty of having repeated the offence and the judge decided that she must remain in jail for twelve months. On each occasion the evidence of her guilt seemed to be indisputable, and an appeal to the High Court failed. When she had served three months of her sentence, however, a remarkable thing happened. Once again libellous postcards began to circulate in Littlehampton, and they were in precisely the same handwriting as those for which Mrs. Gooding had been held responsible. The Director of Prosecutions applied to the Court of Criminal Appeal to have the convictions quashed, and on Monday Mrs. Gooding regained her freedom. It is doubtful whether she will receive compensation for the indignity which she has endured. In the statement which was issued last night the Home Office takes care to point out that the prosecutions were initiated by private persons and that the police had nothing to do with them. It is a hard case, but it need not be taken as convincing evidence that the law requires amendment or that judges and juries attach too much importance to the testimony of handwriting experts.

THE DUBLIN HORSE SHOW.

INCREASED ENTRIES.

The Agricultural Committe of the Royal Dublin Society and their Superintendent, Mr. Bohane, are quite busy preparing matters for the great annual event, the Dublin Horse Show, which will open at Ballsbridge on the 9th of next month. The premises are now in first-class condition for the stabling of the animals, and for their examination and judging.

The entries in all classes of animals for competition number 735, this figure exceeding that of last year by 12. The stallions, yearlings, brood mares, and foals come up to 128, as against 86 last year. In the Hunter classes there are 354 entries, made hunters, five years and upwards, 76; riding cobs and ponies, 92; harness horses, 85.

The sales in the bloodstock paddock will be very important, and the entries for these are:—horses in training 103, yearlings 231, brood mares and foals 256, a total of 590.

An exhibition of Irish handicrafts, which proved so successful last year, will extend the interest in the coming show, which is expected to attract visitors and business men of every degree, not only from all parts of Ireland, but from Great Britain and the Continent.

ROYAL DUBLIN FUSILIERS.

REPATRIATED PRISONERS OF WAR COMMITTEE.

The monthly meeting of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers Repatriated Prisoners of War Committee was held, by kind permission of Lady Arnott, D.B.E., at 12 Merrion square, Dublin, on Wednesday, July 20th. The Committee had before it 39 applications for assistance from the fund. Each case was carefully considered, and grants made to the majority of applicants.

The Secretary attends the office, at 26 South Frederick street, daily for interviews from 9.30 to 10.30. All genuinely necessitious cases are promptly assisted on a recommendation from a clergyman or member of the War Pensions Committee.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—The depression which has recently skirted our western coasts is now centred near the Faroe Islands, and moving away to the northwards. Small secondaries are likely, however, to cause further showers in the North. There are indications of another depression near the Azores, which is likely to affect our area in a day or two.

Ireland, N.W. and N.E.—Wind westerly, moderate or fresh; variably sky, some local showers; visibility good; warm.

Ireland, S.E. and S.W.—Winds westerly, moderate; mainly fair, but cloudy at times; visibility good; warm.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

55 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

The Prime Minister, in spite of his answer to Mr. Ronald McNeill on the subject yesterday, hopes to be able to make a statement on the Irish peace negotiations during the present week, since, with Mr. de Valera, he appreciates the necessity for avoiding delay.

The Evening Standard says that one of the most hopeful developments in the Irish situation is the fact that General Smuts has booked his passage for South Africa in the Kinfauns Castle, sailing on Friday. At first sight this looks as if peace prospects are very hopeful in the negotiations between Mr. de Valera and the Government, and may explain Mr. Devlin's remarks yesterday that he thought they were on the eve of peace in Ireland. It is known, of course, that General Smuts has consented to hold himself at the Government's disposal to resume his rôle of peacemaker if necessary, and he would not leave London were he not assured that the Irish barometer was setting towards fair.

Mr. Chamberlain was asked to-day whether at any time the Sinn Fein flag had been recognised and saluted by His Majesty's forces, and replied "No, sir."

Nearly all the interest in the House of Commons to-day centred round Mr. Chamberlain's statement regarding business. He said that the situation was dominated by the Railways Bill, which must be passed by August 15th, the date of decontrol. The Irish Railway Bill and the Safeguarding of Industries Bill must also be passed. Then there are a number of measures, including the Licensing Bill, which will be passed if they are treated as uncontroversial. If the House assists in carrying out this programme it should be possible for the prorogation to take place some time between the 19th and 26th of August.

Anticipating the argument that there should be an autumn session, Mr. Chamberlain pointed out that the enthusiasm displayed for it in certain quarters was not an index of the real feelings of the House. This had been a very hard-worked Parliament, and the strain upon members, officials, and Ministers, who had had to deal with questions of unparalleled "complexity, immensity, and delicacy," had been very severe. An autumn session would not enable them to get away much earlier for their holidays now, since they must wait for the Railways Bill.

Then, turning to Ireland, he said that if the result of the negotiations was, as he earnestly hoped, "an honourable and satisfactory settlement," it would be impossible to prepare the legislation embodying it at a very early date. Only the outlines of a settlement had been propounded, and they had not yet been accepted. But, assuming that they were, the Government would then summon the House to meet for the new session early in December, or, perhaps, at the end of November, in order to put the settlement into statutory form. If, on the other hand, the negotiations should, unhappily, break down, the Government would probably know it before the prorogation and be able to invite the House to sanction such steps as might be necessary. On a division the Government's motion was carried by 277 votes to 64.

The House then proceeded to the discussion of the Treasury vote. Sir Robert Horne, referring to the recent criticism of the Civil Service, said that a great deal of it was uninformed and even stupid. The Chancellor's opinion of civil servants was that, generally speaking, they were worth more than they were paid, bonus or no bonus, and, in warm language, he repudiated the suggestion that they were "battening" on the British taxpayer.

The Government, it is stated, has received assurances from over two hundred supporters of the Coalition that they will remain in attendance at the House of Commons throughout next month if necessary. This should give the Government a working majority, since many members of the Opposition will certainly desire to pair so that they may get away with their families for the holiday season. In these days it is no joke going to the seaside, for accommodation is scarce and difficult to obtain, and a seaside holiday means much planning and preparation. Members of Parliament are affected like other people unless they happen to have seaside homes, and this is the case with only a few.

In consequence of the threatened opposition of the Labour Party the financial resolution of the Irish Railways Bill, which was to have been taken this evening, has been postponed for a week. The Bill is intended to authorise the payment of three million pounds to those companies in settlement of all claims for war services, and the opposition of the Labour Party is directed to securing for the Irish railwaymen similar treatment as to wages arrangements to that provided for their English colleagues in the main Railways Bill. It is to be gathered from views held in official circles that there is a possibility of the dropping of the Irish Bill so far as this session is concerned.

Good news is coming from the railway companies. The limit has now been reached regarding the dismissal of employés, and it is hoped that the companies will be able to employ many more men in the near future as the services are extended to meet increasing demands. The news is good, because great numbers of men had to be dismissed during the coal trouble, as there was no work for them to do. All the permanent employés who had to stand off during that period have now resumed work, and employment is also being found for some of the temporary hands.

The London holiday-maker is now perplexed by the many facilities offered by the railway companies for Bank Holiday and the holidays generally. After the lean time of the past seven years the opportunities offered are bewildering. Columns of holiday announcements are appearing in the newspapers, while on the walls of the streets are huge posters telling people where they may spend a happy day at a reasonable expense. The omnibus lines are also providing facilities for long journeys by their vehicles. It is now possible to go to the seaside by taking a succession of 'buses, changing at certain definite points marked out by the companies. There is a motor omnibus tour in Dickens's Land around Rochester, every week, and this is accompanied by Mr. van Noorden, the well-known authority on the works of Dickens, who adds to the pleasures of the drive by giving little lectures at the stopping places.

Sir John Butcher will ask the Chief Secretary on Thursday whether there is any Treasury or other regulation under which pensioners of the Royal Irish Constabulary forfeit their pensions on emigrating to some part of the Empire outside the United Kingdom; and, if there be such regulation, whether, in view of the great hardships under which such pensioners now live and the impossibility of their getting employment in the South and West of Ireland, such regulation will be in proper cases waived.

TESTIMONIAL TO THE VICEROY.

The testimonial to Lord FitzAlan from the Coalition M.P.'s is to be presented to him to-day by the Prime Minister and Mr. Austen Chamberlain jointly. The gift consists of ten antique silver-gilt dishes, four of George III., 1765, four of George II., 1756, one of George I., 1728, and one of George IV., 1823. The inscription reads:—"This set of antique dishes was presented to the Right Hon. Lord E. Talbot, G.C.V.O., D.S.O., M.P., by the Coalition members of the House of Commons on his retirement from the office of Patronage Secretary after many years of faithful service. April, 1921."

RAIN IN ENGLAND.

Heavy clouds gathered over London yesterday morning, and later there was a slight fall of rain. Rain was reported from Swansea, Northampton, Derby, and Exeter.

DEATH SENTENCES.

MASTER OF THE ROLLS AND MILITARY COURTS.

WRITS OF HABEAS CORPUS ISSUED.

AN IMPORTANT JUDGMENT.

In the Chancery Division, Dublin, yesterday, the Master of the Rolls delivered judgment in the case of John Joseph Egan v. General Sir Nevil Macready, Major-General Strickland, Brigadier-General Cameron, and the Attorney-General. Egan is a motor engineer in the employment of the Clare County Council, and was sentenced to death by a military court assembled at Limerick.

The Master of the Rolls held that Egan could, and should, have been tried by a court-martial under the provisions of the Restoration of Order in Ireland Act, and that a writ of habeas corpus must be issued on the ground that the Act had limited the powers of the military authority in the present state of war in Ireland. He made the writ returnable for next Friday, and, addressing Mr. Lynch, K.C., who, with Mr. Kennedy, K.C., and Mr. Costello (instructed by Mr. John B. Lynch), appeared for Mr. Egan, said that he took it that when the prisoner was brought up under the writ counsel would move for his discharge.

A similar decision was given in the case of Mr. Patrick Higgins, one of the Clonmult prisoners, who was tried by a military court in Cork and sentenced to death.

THE JUDGMENT.

The Master of the Rolls, in giving judgment in the case of Egan, said that a conditional order was made on the 14th of last June for the issue of a writ of habeas corpus directed to the Commander of the Forces in Ireland and others for the production of the body of John Joseph Egan. Cause had been shown against this order, and a motion had been made on behalf of Egan that the conditional order be made absolute, notwithstanding cause shown. A charge was preferred against Egan by the military authority for committing an offence "in that he, on the 26th May, 1921, near Quin, County Clare, was improperly in possession of ammunition—namely, 97 rounds of revolver ammunition and five rounds of Service ammunition." On that charge Egan was tried before a military court, not a court-martial, but a court constituted in some way unknown to the law, of some military officers. This court, or so-called court, assembled at the New Barracks, Limerick, on the 11th June, 1921, and Egan was shortly afterwards informed, that he had been convicted and sentenced to death. On these facts it was almost a matter of course that a conditional order for a writ of habeas corpus should go. There were two elements present. The court which assumed jurisdiction had no legal status whatever, and the penalty awarded, a death sentence, for the offence charged, had no sanction from British law. But cause was shown by the military authority against the conditional order.

THE MILITARY AFFIDAVITS.

Affidavits were made by the Commander of the Forces and by the Senior General Staff Officer on the Irish Command which proved, if it were necessary to prove, what that court had judicial notice of—that a state of open rebellion had been for a considerable time, and was still, existing in Ireland, and that its object was to overthrow the King's Government as by law established. It was further proved that this insurrection had been prosecuted by the murder of military officers, soldiers, and policemen; by attacks on barracks and railway trains, by the destruction of railway cabins, signal apparatus, and telegraph works; by the trenching of public roadways so as to prevent the movement of troops, and by every method of irregular warfare. All these operations had been carried out by a body called the Irish Republican Army. Indeed, the affidavits made left no room for doubt that there was a widespread rebellion amounting to a state of war with which the ordinary guardians of the public peace could not cope, and which urgently required for its suppression the military forces of the Crown. In this state of affairs the help of the Army was invoked, and the military authority had cast on it the duty of suppressing the rebellion and restoring order in the country. The cause shown was put on the emergency of the situation as he had described it. But it remained to be seen whether it deprived the liege subject of the King of the protection which the common and statute law of the British Constitution afforded him.

A STATE OF WAR.

It was urged on behalf of the military authority that the situation was a state of war which necessitated military operations for the public safety, and that no act done in the course of these operations was subject to the jurisdiction of the King's Courts. The principle, salus populi suprema lex, had been invoked in support of this proposition, and the judgment of the Privy Council in Marais case had been confidently cited as establishing it beyond question. Having quoted from the judgment of Lord Halsbury in Marais case, the Master of the Rolls said that this judgment had been very properly subjected to criticism by Mr. Lynch in his able argument. Mr. Lynch contended that the judgment in such a case as Marais ought not to be held to cover one in which a death sentence had been imposed. He (the Master of the Rolls) was immensely struck by the reflections pressed upon him by Mr. Lynch, and all the more when he bore in mind the comment by Professor Dicey that Marais' case must be read as applicable to the particular acts proved, and was not to be taken as an exposition of the whole law.

THE PREROGATIVE OF THE CROWN.

Assuming that the judgment in the Marais case was one of universal application, there was an element in the present case which required to be specially dealt with. The powers of the military authority were derived from the prerogative of the Crown; and they were confronted with the question whether that prerogative had been limited, and to what extent, by the Restoration of Order in Ireland Act, 1920. It could not be denied that the prerogative of the King might be limited by an Act of Parliament. It was therefore a question of the construction of the Restoration of Order Act, and as such he approached it. It was contended that the use of the word "disorder" in the Restoration of Order in Ireland Act was not intended to refer to a state of war. In his opinion there was nothing in the Act which justified any such limitation, and he thought the whole scope of the Act required to be read as applying to something very different from mere riot or tumult or general lawlessness. It must be remembered that the Restoration of Order Act was supplementary to the Defence of the Realm Consolidation Act, 1914, which dealt with a state of war. Both Acts must be read together, and the principal Act must give its colour to a supplementary Act. But, that was by no means the only guide to the Restoration of Order Act, by which courtsmartial were invested with jurisdiction over the whole civil population for the trial of crime, and crime was defined as including treason and treason felony. In other words, the ordinary functions of the civil courts in criminal matters were suspended and transferred to the military tribunal. This was certainly very like a state of war. It was wholly inconsistent with civil government. No one could read the regulations issued under the Act without seeing that they provided for a state of war properly so-called. It was sought to limit the meaning of the word "disorder" by the contention that although a state of war was now existing it did not exist at the date of the passing of the Restoration of Order Act, and that there was, when the Act was passed, only a general state of lawlessness, for which special powers were required.

GENERAL MACREADY'S AFFIDAVIT.

That assumption was contradicted by the affidavit by General Macready. General Macready referred to the publication of a newspaper or organ called An t-Oglac, dated January 31st, 1919, which declared that a state of war existed between England and Ireland. Indeed, the manifest intention of General Macready's affidavit was to show that a state of war existed for a considerable time, and that it existed so far back as 1919—that was, before the passing of the Restoration of Order Act. He (the Master of the Rolls) could not therefore entertain any doubt that the Act covered an insurrection, amounting to a state of war. Here then they had a very special case—a state of war within the Kingdom, a war against the King and his loyal subjects. The military forces of the Crown were called in aid, and Parliament, with the intention of legalising the operations of the military, and at the same time safeguarding the subjects of the King, passed an Act giving the military special powers, but imposing conditions. Was it to be said that the military authority was to be entitled to disregard the conditions because, in their opinion, the special powers conferred were not sufficient for the emergency? This was an entirely new question, which distinguished the present case from the Marais case, and all others which had preceded it. What were the powers of the military authority as conferred by the Restoration of Order Act? And what were the limitations imposed? There was power to try any person, whether military or civilian, whether rebel or loyalist, by court martial. But in the case of trial for an offence punishable by death the courtsmartial must include one member nominated by the Lord Lieutenant and certified to be a person of legal knowledge and experience. In his opinion, this enactment meant that an offence punishable by death should be tried by no other military tribunal than by a court martial constituted as prescribed.

THE PUNISHMENT.

Again, there was an enactment that any crime, when tried by courtmartial, should be punishable with the punishment assigned to the crime by Statute or common law. Was it for the military authorities to say:—No doubt the Act was passed to meet an emergency, but we find the emergency greater than was con-

SPECIAL EXTRA.

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

THE NATION'S BUSINESS.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

Mr. Chamberlain has made it clear that in the happy event of an Irish agreement a new session may be summoned to begin in the last week of November or early in December. It was a foregone conclusion that, if a settlement arose from the present negotiations, Parliament would have to meet in order to enact the new measure which it would entail, but many will be disappointed that the Government consider so long an interval to be necessary before a favourable conclusion on the part of the negotiations can be ratified. Mr. Chamberlain has argued that no shorter period would enable an agreement with Ireland to be embodied in legislative form, but his argument was not wholly convincing, for his estimate seemed to accord too closely with the Government's known desire to delay the reassembling of Parliament as long as possible. Certainly, four months appear a most liberal allowance, in view of the importance of concluding an Irish agreement at the earliest possible moment. If, on the other hand, the calamity of a failure in the present negotiations were to befall, Mr. Chamberlain has informed the House that, since Parliament ought to know of that event before it rises, a statement will be made, and opportunity be given to discuss and decide future action. It is impossible to contemplate the situation which would then arise with equanimity, but it would, in any case, demand the closest supervision on the part of Parliament. The Government may, indeed, believe themselves capable of calculating the alternative courses which Irish events may pursue. They have not, however, always proved themselves true prophets, and the anxiety of the country would undoubtedly have been allayed had it known definitely that, whatever might occur in Ireland, Parliament would be in session during months that may well be critical.

IRISH AGREEMENT.

The Parliamentary Correspondent of The Times writes:—There is not to be an autumn session, but there will probably be a session in the autumn. That is the net effect of the announcement made yesterday by Mr. Austen Chamberlain. The force of the distinction is that no legislation will be carried over from this session to the autumn sitting, which, according to the present view of affairs, will devote itself exclusively to Ireland. Satisfactory inferences as to the course of events in Ireland were drawn from Mr. Chamberlain's speech. It is also significant that in well-informed quarters it is now confidently stated that the Prime Minister will attend the Washington Conference on Pacific questions and disarmament. With an unsettled Ireland, it would be impossible for him to leave the country for the long period that the discussions in Washington will certainly occupy. The Government is apparently, therefore, making its plans on the assumption of a favourable outcome of the Irish negotiations.

THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

The Duke of Devonshire, observes The Times editorially, is expected to-day on his return from Canada, where he has filled the office of Governor-General with consistent and high success. Before he left Canada many tributes were paid to his work in the Dominion, all testifying to his tact, his devotion, and his understanding of Canadian conditions. The Duchess has shared with him the burden of a great task, and his success is her success, too. Such labours have their rewards as well as their fatigues and anxieties. It is much that a public man in this country has the knowledge of Canada which the Duke of Devonshire now has, and one of the defects of the political and administrative system of this country is that too little scope is given to the men who have such knowledge.

BRITISH SHIPPING HIT.

In consequence, The Times understands, of lower freights accepted by foreign steamship companies, especially the German lines, from the Continent, the British shipping companies have now decided to reduce their rates very substantially from the United Kingdom to India. The reductions are stated to amount to about 40 per cent. on the basis rate to Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras for cargo by weight, and to about 25 per cent. on measurement cargo, which includes Manchester piece goods. The lower rates are to come into effect as from the end of this month.

GOVERNMENT OF IRELAND ACT.

APPOINTED DAYS.

The London Gazette last night contained an Order-in-Council, dated July 25, dealing with appointed days under the Government of Ireland Act. The following is the full text of the Order:—

Whereas it is provided by the Government of Ireland Act, 1920 (hereinafter referred to as the Act), that the Act shall, except as expressly provided, come into operation on the appointed day, and that the appointed day for the purposes of the Act shall be the first Tuesday in the eighth month after the month of December, 1920 (being the month in which the Act was passed), or such other day not more than seven months earlier or later, as may be fixed by Order of His Majesty-in-Council, either generally or with reference to any particular provision of the Act, and that different days may be appointed for different purposes and different provisions of the Act.

And whereas by an Order-in-Council, dated the 4th day of March, 1921, appointed days were fixed for the purposes of the provisions of the Act, other than the provisions thereby excepted (hereinafter referred to as the excepted provisions).

And whereas the excepted provisions include the provisions of section 44 of the Act, being provisions relative to the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and subsequently by the Government of Ireland (Lord Chancellor of Ireland) Order, 1921, the 27th day of June, 1921, was fixed to be the appointed day for the purposes of the provisions of the said section.

And whereas the 2nd day of August, 1921, is the first Tuesday in the eighth month after the month in which the Act was passed.

Now, therefore, His Majesty is pleased, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows:—

The appointed day for the purposes of any of the excepted provisions which have not come into operation prior to the second day of August, 1921, shall be such later day or days as may hereafter be fixed by Order-in-Council.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AND CHEERFULNESS.

The Prince of Wales's first public engagement since his recent indisposition was a dinner last night of the London Chamber of Commerce.

Replying to the toast of his health, the Prince said that there never had been a time when the efforts of Chambers of Commerce could be more valuable to the commercial world. The transition from war conditions to stable peace conditions was bound to be a trying time, and he often thought that a very good answer to people who complained nowadays was that there had been a great war. He dared to hope that experts could already detect rifts in the clouds of business depression hanging over us. At any rate, cheerfulness was a duty. He had faith in the unquenchable cheerfulness and underlying unity of the nation which carried us through the war. We were a people of great commonsense, which implied a frank recognition of facts, the spirit of give and take, and making the best of things. Were he calling a toast, he would give "The Empire and British Commonsense."

MONAGHAN FARMERS AND THE FLAX INDUSTRY.

REQUEST FOR GOVERNMENT BONUS.

At a largely attended meeting of County Monaghan Farmers' Association, which is affiliated to the Irish Farmers' Union, the following resolutions were adopted, and ordered to be sent to the National Executive:—(1) That we urge upon the Government the necessity of granting a substantial bonus on all flax grown in 1920-21. (2) That the future of the flax industry and kindred trades depends largely on the encouragement which may be given by way of bonus. (3) That the Government by granting a bonus will confer a benefit on the general community by creating more labour in scutch, spinning and weaving mills, and thereby end the high expenditure by way of unemployment benefits now being paid in connection with these industries. (4) That a bonus given as indicated would encourage farmers to market the 1919-20 crop, and also encourage the growing of flax in future years.

EIGHT GIRLS DROWNED.

Owing to the collapse of an iron footbridge leading to the women's baths at Soleure (Switzerland) 40 girls fell into the water, and eight were drowned.

A Christiania message of Tuesday says:—The Tidens Tegn learns that a representative of the Hudson's Bay Company paid a visit some days ago to Finmarte on behalf of the Canadian Government, and bought a herd of seven hundred reindeer for shipment to Baffin Island. A number of Lapps were also engaged to take care of the animals, which will be despatched in September.

UPPER SILESIA.

SUPREME COUNCIL MEETING.

UNITED STATES TO BE REPRESENTED.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE MAY NOT ATTEND.

The date and place of the Allied Conference on Upper Silesia have been definitely fixed. The meeting will take place in Paris on 4th August, but it is highly improbable that Mr. Lloyd George will be there. Great Britain will be represented by Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, who will have at least one other Minister associated with him—probably Mr. Balfour. The new arrangement, which was only completed yesterday, represents a compromise between the views of the French and the British Governments. France has accepted the British suggestion of an early Conference, while Great Britain has agreed to the French proposal that a new Commission shall make investigation in regard to the boundary line. The Commissioners will begin work at once, and they are expected to be ready to report to the Allied Conference, in Paris, on 4th August.

A Paris message of Tuesday says:—According to the procedure which has now been adopted by France, Great Britain, and Italy, the Committee of Experts, who are to examine the Upper Silesian problem before the meeting of the Supreme Council, will assemble on July 28th. It is stated that the United States will be represented at the forthcoming meeting of the Supreme Council by Mr. Harvey, American Ambassador in London.

The experts appointed by the British Government have already left for Paris. There is no question of their going to Silesia.

The Petit Parisien, referring to the Upper Silesia problem, considers that the important fact of Monday is that an agreement has been reached between the Allies as to the necessity of experts meeting to examine the problem next Thursday. This agreement, remarks the paper, gives rise to the hope that the British Government will eventually show itself more conciliating with regard to the despatch of reinforcements. The journal understands that the Supreme Council will meet in Paris, and that a representative of the United States will attend, but not as a simple spectator.

A Berlin telegram of Tuesday says:—The Ostdeutsche Morgenpost states that the Pope has refused the petition of the clergy of Upper Silesia, begging His Holiness to assume the special protection of the Polish clergy in that province, and to nominate another Cardinal in the place of Cardinal Bertram, Bishop of Breslau. The Polish Government has resolved to demand the recall of the Papal Nuncio, Monsignor Ratti.

PRESIDENT HARDING AND THE RAILWAYS.

President Harding, in a special message to Congress, has asked for an extension of the authority of the War Finance Corporation to purchase securities, probably up to five hundred million dollars in value, now in the hands of the railroad administration, in order that the proceeds may be used for the purpose of arranging settlements with the railways. The President declares that, although the railways owe the Government a large sum, the Government also owes the railroads a large sum. He continues:—No added expense and no added investment will be required on the part of the Government, and there will be no added liability of the burden of taxation, but merely the granting of the authority necessary to enable a most useful and efficient Government agency to use its available funds for purchasing securities for which Congress had already authorised the issue, and to turn them into the channels of finance ready to float them.

FIGHTING IN ASIA MINOR.

REPORTED CAPTURE OF GREEK DIVISION.

A Greek communiqué, dated Saturday, says:—According to data collated to the present, the enemy, during the last ten days, lost more than three-quarters of his forces in guns, and in men killed and wounded, and in prisoners and deserters. Most of the divisions lost more than half their strength.

A naval communiqué says:—Our patrols arrested a Kemalist steamer laden with soldiers.

A Paris telegram, dated Tuesday, states:—Constantinople telegrams report that Turkish troops coming from Sanikli have occupied Ushak, capturing a Greek division.

A Paris message of Tuesday says:—The following telegram has been received from Constantinople:—According to reports from Asia Minor, the Turks have re-occupied Yalova and Guelanik, and advanced fourteen kilometres to the west of Yeni-Shehr, in the direction of Brusa. On the southern front the Turks are stated to be advancing.

THREATENED FAMINE IN THE UNITED STATES.

TROUBLES OF THE COTTON BELT.

A Washington telegram, dated Monday, states:—President Harding, alarmed at the reports of a threatened semi-famine, coupled with an epidemic of pellagra in a large section of the southern belt, has requested the Public Health and Red Cross officials immediately to investigate and ascertain what the Government can do to relieve the situation. The President said that the threat of famine and plague seemed to arise through the impossibility of the people selling their cotton, and the resultant shortage of money had apparently deprived many thousands of the variety of food necessary to ward off pellagra. Pellagra, or Italian leprosy, is a severe constitutional or blood disease prevailing in parts of Italy and the South of France. It first manifests itself as an erythematous eruption of the skin, which is followed by lesions of the mucous membrane and a serious disturbance of the nervous system.

SUNDAY LETTER COLLECTION.

MR. KELLAWAY'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Kellaway, in reply to Mr. Pretyman, in the House of Commons yesterday, said that he could not see his way to substitute Sunday evening collection and despatch of letters and mails in place of the present Saturday evening collection, as the change would absorb the greater part of the saving which had been effected.

Mr. Pretyman—Is the right hon. gentleman aware that there are large areas of the country where one cannot get a Monday paper at all, and does he not think that the commercial value of a Monday delivery of letters, which have not lain in the post for 36 hours, is greater than a few hundred thousand pounds?

Mr. Kellaway—That is precisely the difficulty with which every proposal for economy is met. There is a saving of nearly half a million by the present arrangement.

Sir F. Banbury asked whether, in view of the large salaries which were paid to the Post Office officials, they could do a little more work.

Mr. Kellaway—The right hon. baronet cannot be aware that the Post Office to-day has as small a staff as they had in 1914, and have a much larger volume of work.

ATTACK ON MILITARY IN DONEGAL.

CHARGES AGAINST AN EX-SOLDIER.

Before a courtmartial in Derry yesterday, Patrick McAteer, an ex-soldier, Ballybofey, Co. Donegal, was charged with soliciting a soldier to sell arms and ammunition, and also with shooting at an officer of the Rifle Brigade and three riflemen, and having a rifle and seventeen rounds of ammunition.

Evidence was given that in April the accused endeavoured to get a soldier to sell him two rifles and ammunition. He offered to buy the soldier out of the Army, and said that money was no object to him. In the second case, the evidence was that a military party returning from fishing at Lough Eske were ambushed. They returned the fire, and John McGarron was shot dead. When returning to assist McGarron a man, alleged to be the accused, was wounded. A rifle and ammunition were found at the scene. McAteer was found wounded in a "dug-out" on the mountain. A soldier said to him—"You had a good try to get us last Thursday." McAteer replied—"As a soldier, I did my best; only that I went back to assist McGarron, I would not have been hit."

The Court reserved judgment.

THE POPE'S PRAYER FOR PEACE.

The Pope has written a special prayer to be recited at public functions asking God to put an end to the internal struggles which are inflicting several countries, especially Italy.

WAGES IN THE WHOLESALE MANTLE AND COSTUME TRADE.

It is announced in the Dublin Gazette that, in accordance with Section 3 (5) of the Trade Boards Act, 1918, it is proposed to vary the minimum rates of wages for male and female workers in the wholesale mantle and costume trade in Ireland.

PEACE MOVEMENT.

STATEMENT BY MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

MERELY PRINCIPLES PROPOSED.

QUESTION OF LEGISLATION.

Speaking in the House of Commons yesterday on the business for the remainder of the session, Mr. Austen Chamberlain referred to the Irish peace negotiations. He said:—There is, perhaps, one other point that I ought to deal with. It may be in the minds of many members of the House—I refer to Ireland and the negotiations which have been proceeding, but which for the moment are suspended, though in existence, between the Government and parties in Ireland. If these negotiations result—as I earnestly hope they may—(hear, hear)—in a settlement which is honourable and satisfactory to the different parties concerned, and if, therefore, Irish peace be in sight—(hear, hear)—very early consideration by Parliament might be necessary; but as far as we can see in that happy contingency agreement could not have reached the point at which it could be embodied in legislation to be submitted to this House at an early date. At present merely the outlines or principles of a settlement have been proposed. To those no answer has yet been received. If they are accepted, they may become the basis for a conference. Then many matters of detail would remain for discussion and adjustment, and when all is concluded time must be given for embodying the result in satisfactory statutory form. Accordingly we do not anticipate that, in the most hopeful contingency for which we all hope, and which would be the best of all—of agreement being reached—an early session of Parliament would be required, or, indeed, possible. In such a case we have in mind the possibility of summoning a new session, to begin early in December, or, perhaps, in the last week in November, to deal with that particular question before Christmas, and then go on with the ordinary business of the new session in the new year after the Christmas adjournment.

ANOTHER CONTINGENCY.

One other contingency I devoutly pray may not be realised, but I should, perhaps, mention it, for, if I do not, I may be asked what would the Government suggest in such a case. It is the contingency that the negotiations, instead of meeting with success, should fail. In that case I think we must know before Parliament prorogues what the prospects are. A statement must certainly be made before Parliament prorogues, and discussed, if need be, and we can take such decisions as are necessary; but in the present circumstances of the situation I hope that the happier result will follow, and, if that is the case, then I anticipate that a meeting at the end of November or in December would probably afford the earliest opportunity at which the legislation required by the settlement could be ready for the consideration of Parliament.

STATEMENT IN THE LORDS.

In the House of Lords yesterday the Lord Chancellor informed Lord Salisbury that the Government hoped and expected to be in a position to make a statement about Ireland before the House adjourns.

NOTHING TO REPORT IN DUBLIN.

Mr. de Valera spent another busy day at the Dublin Mansion House yesterday, and received many callers.

The Press representatives were informed by Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, M.P., that there was nothing to communicate. A statement on behalf of the Sinn Fein leaders probably will be issued in the course of a few days.

FUTURE OF THE POLICE FORCES.

A meeting of the Representative Body of the Royal Irish Constabulary has been assembled, and is now occupied in discussing the future of the Force as it may be affected by the Better Government of Ireland Act or by any other Act which may alter the present status of the Force in Ireland.

The meeting is a preliminary one, as nothing is known of the final proposals of the Government as to the future of the Royal Irish Constabulary. In view of possible developments it is naturally of importance that the Force should have a free interchange of views, so as to ensure that the interests of the members of the Force, whatever their service, shall not be overlooked.

The Auxiliary Division is taking no part in the meeting. That Force rests on an entirely different footing, and the Prime Minister's statement in the House of Commons regarding it was that its position would receive careful consideration. Nothing has been settled as to the future of the Auxiliary Division, and until there is a definite settlement there is no question of disbanding the Division.

THE TRUCE.

Mr. Duggan, the chief Sinn Fein liaison officer for Ireland, states that no arrangement has yet been arrived at with regard to the difficulty which has arisen in the carrying out of their respective duties by Government officials and the officials of the Irish Republican Army, whose duties are to preserve the peace in the martial law area.

THE ATHLONE AREA.

Commandant Fintan Murphy, liaison officer for the Athlone area, returned to Athlone on Monday night, after a tour of Westmeath, Longford, Roscommon, Leitrim, and Sligo. He reports that he found everything satisfactory in these counties, and that the terms of the truce are being honourably observed by both sides. As Commandant Murphy's name is being used by unauthorised persons latterly, in furtherance of local disputes in reference to land and other questions, he has made the following statement:—"It has come to my knowledge that parties are using my name without my authority for purposes of their own. Any communication or order that I wish to issue will be issued on my official notepaper, and none other has my authority."

THE SINN FEIN FLAG.

Brigadier-General Colvin asked the Prime Minister, in the House of Commons yesterday, if the Sinn Fein flag had at any time been recognised and saluted by His Majesty's forces.

Mr. Chamberlain—No, sir.

DUBLIN WINTER GARDENS SCENE.

CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED MURDER.

ACCUSED FURTHER REMANDED.

The young man who was remanded last Saturday on a charge of attempting to murder A. Hayes, 1 Windsor villas, Fairview, in the Winter Gardens, Dublin, on the previous night by firing a shot from a revolver at him, and with having a revolver without a permit or licence, was again brought forward in custody, in the Southern Police Court, before Mr. Cooper, K.C., yesterday.

It is understood that since first remanded he gave his name as Joseph Dolan and his address as Ellesmere avenue, off Prussia street.

Mr. O'Flaherty, of the Chief Crown Solicitor's office, who prosecuted, said that he proposed to examine only one witness and then ask for a remand for one week. The injured man was still in hospital, and was in a very bad condition.

Mr. P. H. O'Brien, solicitor, appeared for the accused.

Mr. Cooper suggested that it would be well to have a deposition taken from the injured man, and Mr. O'Flaherty said that he would consider that.

Leo Reilly was called and stated that he was sitting with Hayes in the Winter Gardens on Friday night at a little after 10 o'clock. Some people were sitting behind him, and he heard Hayes say, "What are you staring at?" or words to that effect. One of the men said, "What are you staring at?" Hayes jumped up from his seat and said "What?" Another man also jumped from his seat. Witness jumped up and saw a man produce a revolver, but he would not swear that the accused was that man. The man was dressed like the accused and was of dark appearance. When the man produced the revolver Hayes and some one whom witness did not know made a dive for him, and simultaneously a third man put his hand into his pocket for a gun.

To Mr. Cooper—Hayes was the first to grab for the revolver. There were two others afterwards. Witness made a grab for the revolver and then heard a shot. Half a minute elapsed from the time of the first grab to the discharge of the revolver. He could not say whether the revolver was discharged deliberately or not. He did not see anyone hit after the shot went off. A minute afterwards he heard Hayes moaning. Hayes was wounded in the right thigh. Witness was grappling with the other man. Witness then went to get brandy.

This was all the evidence produced, and the accused was remanded for a week.

THE PREMIER'S HOLIDAYS.

The arrangements for the Prime Minister's holidays are not yet completed, but it has been decided that in view of the home situation he will certainly not go abroad.

NO AUTUMN SESSION.

STATEMENT BY MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

URGENCY OF THE RAILWAYS BILL.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

It was agreed, on the motion of Mr. Chamberlain, that for the remainder of the session the House should meet at 11 o'clock and rise at 4 o'clock, instead of 5 o'clock, and that two additional days be allotted to the business of Supply.

Mr. Chamberlain further proposed that Government business be proceeded with for the remainder of the session after 11 o'clock, and indicated the business that the Government proposed to deal with before the end of the session. He said that the outstanding feature in the present Parliamentary situation was the Railways Bill, as it was necessary to obtain that before Parliament was prorogued. It was not possible to contemplate the postponement of a decision on that bill until the autumn, and a special meeting of Parliament in the autumn for the purpose—for reasons already explained—with the decontrol of the railways, and the financial and other difficulties which would follow if this measure did not receive the Royal assent on an early date. Accordingly the Government proposed to take every available day to complete the five days allotted to the report stage and third reading of the bill. It would be taken on Wednesday, July 27; Monday and Tuesday, August 1 and 2; Monday and Tuesday, August 8 and 9, on which days it would complete its stages in that House, and go to the House of Lords. They proposed to take Supply on Thursday, July 28, and on Wednesday and Thursday, August 3 and 4, when the allotted days would expire, and Supply be terminated. On the completion of the Railways Bill the Government would take the three remaining allotted days for the Safeguarding of Industries Bill—(ironical cheers)—which he hoped would reach the House of Lords not later than August 15.

NECESSARY BILLS.

The following were the other bills which it was necessary to pass into law:—Irish Railways (Settlement of Claims) Bill, Isle of Man Customs Bill, Police Bill, Public Works Loan Bill, Telegraph (Money) Bill, War Pensions Bill, War Undertakings Bill, Modification of War Pensions Bill; also the following bills already passed that House, and which might require consideration in connection with amendments by the House of Lords:—The Church of Scotland Bill, Corn Production Act (Repeal) Bill, Greenwich Hospital Bill, Housing (Scotland No. 2) Bill, Representation of the People (No. 2) Bill. It would also be necessary to pass into law the Expiring Laws Continuance Bill and the Consolidated Fund Bill.

BILLS DROPPED.

It was not intended to proceed with the Summer Time Bill—(laughter)—the Salmon and Fresh Water Fisheries Bill, the Electricity Supply Bill, and the Clinical Thermometer Bill. The other bills on the paper would not be pressed unless they could be passed with general consent. He believed that many of them were desired in all quarters of the House, and were in the ordinary sense non-contentious—The Criminal Law (Amendment) Bill, Criminal Law Procedure (Scotland) Bill, Education Consolidation Bill, Government of Burmah Bill, Juries Emergency Provisions Renewal Bill, Licensing No. 2 Bill, Law of Property Bill, Land Settlement Amendment Bill, Territorial Army and Militia Bill, Trust Scotland Bill, Admiralty Pensions Bill. There was a number of bills which had not yet been presented, but which, in deference to the Public Accounts Committee, the Government would present, but which could only be passed with general consent. One was the amendment of the Exchequer and Audit Act, which the Committee thought should be brought before the House.

THE ADJOURNMENT.

I think, added Mr. Chamberlain, that it might be possible for the House to rise certainly not later than August 26th—(cries of "Oh")—and possibly on a date between August 13th and 26th. The 19th is the earliest possible date, and the 26th probably the latest possible date, although, of course, a good deal depends upon what is done in another place, and the amount of time that might be required for the consideration of measures and the character of the amendments that they make. The alternative is, of course, an autumn session. (Cheers.) The enthusiastic cheers with which the suggestion of an autumn session is received in certain quarters is no measure of a real desire to return in the autumn. I think it will be generally agreed that the inconvenience, and more than inconvenience, to the public service and the strain upon members which will be involved in an autumn session is not to be contemplated unless the adoption of that expedient greatly lightens our labours at the present time and enables us to adjourn at a much earlier date. The railway situation is the dominant factor in the whole position. We cannot take the responsibility of adjourning Parliament and leaving the railway question unsettled and the whole of railway finance in confusion. It was desirable, he continued, and every member knew it in his heart, that there should not be an autumn session again this year. In twelve out of the last thirteen years there had been an autumn session. This Parliament had been a very hard-worked Parliament, and some holiday was necessary in order that the House might be in a position to discharge its duties to the country next year.

Mr. Chamberlain then referred to the Irish situation and to the possibility of a special session of Parliament to deal with special Irish legislation.

SIR DONALD MACLEAN.

Sir Donald Maclean said that if it was evident after the reference to Ireland that it would be necessary for Parliament to sit in the autumn, he thought that it would be better for Parliament to rise, say, next week and come back in November to finish the business. He did not take the view that it was necessary to get the Railways Bill through by August 15. The money had not to be found until the end of December, and ample time should be given to the House of Lords to deal with the measure. (Hear, hear.) He thought it was also important that the Licensing Bill should be passed before Parliament was prorogued. Dealing with what he described as the Government's mismanagement of business, he said that, with one or two exceptions, nobody believed in the safeguarding of Industries Bill, and a great deal of time had been taken up with the reversal of measures already passed. (Hear, hear.) There were the questions of housing and finance, which required further attention. (Hear, hear.) What the Leader of the House was asking for was a letter of licence to the Government for six months. In face of the world and the home situation, the demand for financial control and the need for the proper regulation of legislation, it was not in the interests of the public or of Parliament that the motion should be agreed to. (Opposition cheers.)

MR. CLYNES.

Mr. Clynes said that he considered that the time of Parliament had been largely wasted. Parliament should sit earlier in the day rather than later at night. The mockery of late sittings should be avoided. (Hear, hear.) In view of the growing pressure of Parliamentary work and responsibility, an autumn session must be accepted now as the normal condition of things. He moved that the motion should operate until the 31st August instead of "for the remainder of the session."

This was accepted by the Government and agreed to.

Lord Robert Cecil said that he considered that the position of affairs with regard to Ireland would compel a meeting of Parliament in the autumn. The House should be sitting while the estimates for the coming year were being farmed, in order that drastic economy might be enforced. He wished to move an amendment providing that the House should meet at noon rather than sit late at night, but the Speaker ruled that that would be out of order, as it would affect the Standing Orders of the House.

After further discussion, the resolution as amended was carried by 277 to 61.

REMARKABLE APPEAL CASE.

MRS. GOODING VINDICATED.

HOME OFFICE STATEMENT.

In reply to numerous inquiries, the Home Office last night issued the following statement regarding the case of Mrs. Rose Emma Gooding, whose convictions were quashed by the Court of Criminal Appeal on Monday:—

In December last Mrs. Gooding was convicted, at Lewes Assizes, of publishing, in Littlehampton, certain libellous postcards and letters, and was sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment. In March last she was again convicted, at Lewes Assizes, of publishing further libels, which were in precisely the same handwriting as those which had formed the subject of the prosecution in December. She received a sentence of twelve months' imprisonment. Both of these prosecutions were prosecutions by the person against whom the libels were mainly directed. They were not undertaken by the Director of Public Prosecutions or by the police. Mrs. Gooding was convicted for the second time on March 2nd, and, after she had been in custody for several weeks, further libels, in the same handwriting, began to be published in Littlehampton. These were brought to the notice of the Director of Public Prosecutions and the Home Office. The Home Secretary at once instituted inquiries, and, as the result of the information he obtained, decided to refer both of the convictions to the Court of Criminal Appeal. It was clearly demonstrated that Mrs. Gooding could have been in no way responsible for the authorship or publication of the libellous communications which had appeared while she was in prison, and up to a date as recent as June 15th, and her innocence of the offences of which she had twice been convicted was thus established.

PARLIAMENT.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

SIR ROBERT HORNE'S DEFENCE.

THE SALARIES AND BONUS.

The House of Commons yesterday went into Committee of Supply on the Civil Services Estimates.

On a vote of £235,388 for salaries and expenses in the Treasury department,

Sir Robert Horne made a statement on the subject of the duties and remuneration of civil servants. He said the service had been unjustly attacked. Some of the criticism of civil servants indulged in in the Press had been stupid, and some had been scurrilous. We in this country had the finest civil service in the world. It was imbued with the highest traditions of conduct and honour, and was animated by an incomparable spirit of responsibility and duty. As to the salaries paid to the men occupying higher positions in the service, it was not too much to say that these men had anxieties and responsibilities quite as great as those of a manager in one of the biggest of our commercial undertakings. The salaries that these men received was fixed at £3,000 a year. The average salary paid to a railway manager was £5,700, that to a bank manager was £7,200, and to a manager of an insurance company £8,600. He had worked long hours himself, but he took off his hat to a civil servant of the First Division, who was more devoted to duty than anyone in any other business in the country. The Asquith Committee expressed the view that £3,000 a year was a proper salary to pay these men.

GETTING DOWN TO BEDROCK.

Dealing with the criticism that since the war a large number of civil servants had dug themselves in and refused to be ousted, he said that he was not content to accept the present situation, and say that it was all right. On the contrary, he was doing his very utmost in connection with all these matters of expenditure to get it right down to bed-rock, and discover what was the real minimum of staff required to carry on the essential services of the country. Whatever was necessary to be done, he should certainly attempt to do. The Committee ought not to judge harshly until they knew the facts. They might criticise the Government if they liked; he was dealing with criticisms of the Civil Service. Leaving out of account the new departments there had been an addition of 10 per cent. That required investigation which he should apply his mind to, but until there had been an investigation he asked members to suspend judgment. The work of the Revenue departments had increased enormously since the war. The Admiralty and War Office were engaged in liquidating war contracts. He turned to the third matter—the bonus scheme. It might surprise the Committee to learn that 50 per cent. of the 300,000 Civil Servants entitled to the bonus only got before the war an average of less than 35s. weekly. Eighty-eight per cent. of the whole had salaries of less than £200 a year. There were only 6,000 in the service who had over £500 a year, and only 770 with salaries of over £1,000. These 770 had to supervise over half a million people and workers. The bonus scheme was not more favourable than that given in other industries, and was less favourable than some. He did not understand the attitude of those who said that the Civil Service must be recruited from cheap labour. Those who tried it would get the Civil Service that they deserved.

REDUCING THE BONUS.

Some people suggested that the bonus should be taken away altogether. That was an entirely impracticable position. Looking at the matter as fairly as they could they had come to the conclusion that, so far as salaries under £500 a year was concerned, they ought not to take anything off the bonus being paid. The recipients would only suffer the ordinary automatic reduction. It was from them that the ten millions which would come off in September would mainly come, but he proposed that no bonus at all should be paid on any salary over £2,000 a year. After September 1st nobody with a salary of £2,000 and upwards would receive any bonus, and nobody's salary would be brought above £2,000 by the payment of any bonus. Then on salaries from £500 to £2,000, in addition to the automatic reduction in September, he proposed that there should be taken off what remained of the bonus after the reduction—10 per cent. in the case of people with salaries from £500 to £700 a year, 15 per cent. in the case of £800 salaries, 20 per cent. in the case of £900 salaries, and so on until they get an extra reduction of 60 per cent. in addition to the automatic reduction in the case of £1,700 salaries. This additional reduction as from September 1st represented some half a million a year.

THE COST OF THE DEPARTMENTS.

Captain W. Benn said that the Chancellor had not said a single word about effecting a 20 per cent. reduction in the cost of the departments, and had merely announced a reduction amounting to half a million a year on a total salary list of 65 millions. That was not applying the axe to the root of the evil. He moved a reduction of the vote by £100.

Sir H. Craik ridiculed the comparison between the head of a Civil Service department and the manager of a city firm. He wished to see compulsory reductions made in staffs.

Mr. C. Edwards said that he did not think that Civil Servants were overpaid.

Lord E. Percy said that he thought the Whitley Council might be asked to make a monthly or two monthly revisions of the bonus.

Mr. G. Locker-Lampson said that he believed that we would never get true economy until Government departments were rationed in their expenditure. He was disappointed at the Chancellor's speech. Nobody wished to attack the Civil Service as a service. The Chancellor must do much more than make little cuts here and there. He was not sure that the Chancellor had not been too severe on the lower salaries and not severe enough on the higher salaries.

Mr. Lorden said that he considered that the whole Civil Service wanted reorganising on a business-like basis.

THE TAXPAYER'S BURDEN.

Mr. Esmond Harmsworth said that it was the policy of the Government that was responsible for the excessive number of Civil Servants employed. Since the armistice the Government had wrenched from the taxpayers three thousand millions in taxation, and realised 582 millions for war stores. Nevertheless, the National Debt had been increased in the same period by 250 millions.

Sir C. Oman said that he considered that it was insane to raise the higher grade fixed salaries at the present time.

Mr. Clynes said that he considered that the Government proposals involved great injustice to the middle classes, who had been held up as suffering most as a result of the war. The Chancellor's proposals were, no doubt, a concession to the clamour for economy.

Colonel Walter Guinness raised the question of ex-Service men engaged on the temporary staff of the Civil Service, of whom, he said, 2,000 had received notice during the past fortnight. He also understood that 8,000 or 9,000 men who fought in the war had been taken off the permanent and put on the temporary staff. He was told that a preference was being shown to non-Service men, and that conscientious objectors had all been reinstated.

THE GOVERNMENT'S POSITION.

Mr. H. Young, replying on the debate, maintained that while the reductions made by the super-cut would be very substantial, they were not too brutally serious. Dealing with the attack made by Captain W. Benn, he pointed out that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had already promised to make a statement before the end of the session as to economies to be effected in the preliminary estimates for next year, which were expected before the end of the present month from the departments. After the estimates were received a substantial amount of work would have to be done in connection with them, therefore he failed to see the relevance of Captain Benn's attack at that moment. The number of ex-Service men in the employment of the Government had increased considerably, and 260 conscientious objectors had been taken back, having fulfilled all the requirements imposed on them by the tribunals.

Sir Robert Horne moved the closure, and it was carried by 205 to 55.

Captain W. Benn's motion for reduction was negatived by 180 to 71.

The debate was adjourned.

SHOT BY STRANGERS.

STRANGE AFFAIR NEAR NAVAN.

Our Navan Correspondent states that Joseph FitzSimons, a labourer, aged about 35 years, residing at Moynalvey, a small village between Summerhill and Dunshaughlin, was admitted to the Navan Hospital on Monday suffering from a revolver wound in the left thigh. The shooting, which is devoid of political significance, took place under singular circumstances.

At about 11 o'clock on Saturday night a group of labouring men were standing outside O'Brien's licensed premises in Moynalvey. Two men of small stature, and well dressed, came up to the shop, knocked, and were not admitted, as it was after closing hour. The strangers came over to the group of local men, amongst whom was FitzSimons. They asked if they could get a drink in the publichouse. They also asked the men for their names.

It is stated that FitzSimons refused to give his name. Then one of the men pulled out a revolver, and, it is alleged, fired into the crowd, and the bullet struck FitzSimons. The second man was also armed. The labourers ran to FitzSimons's help, and carried him home. It is alleged that the two strange men knocked, got into the publichouse, and took some things.

The Dunshaughlin police were informed of the occurrence, and visited the place. FitzSimons is at present in hospital under Surgeon Timmons's care, and it is difficult to say whether he is out of danger yet. The bullet made a clean passage through the thigh. The two strangers have so far escaped, and no clue to their identity has been found.

PERSIA'S CHOICE.

STATEMENT BY LORD CURZON.

In the House of Lords yesterday,

The Corn Production Acts Repeal Bill was read a first time, and Lord Strachie gave notice to move its rejection on the second reading.

The Merchant Shipping Bill passed through Committee.

The Corn Sales Bill, the Church of Scotland Bill, and the Coroners Remuneration Bill were read a third time.

THE PERSIAN SITUATION.

The Marquis Curzon, replying to questions from Lord Lamington and Lord Sydenham, said that it was a little difficult for anyone, even from the inside, to follow the kaleidoscopic changes that had taken place in Persia since they last debated the subject in November last year. Prime Minister had succeeded Prime Minister with almost bewildering rapidity, and there had been almost as many Persian policies as Prime Ministers. It was in the midst of this perplexing jumble of events that a Soviet Minister appeared on the scene at Teheran in April, and since his arrival he had pursued the familiar Bolshevik methods, whilst always in the background there was the presence of Soviet forces on Persian territory. It seemed to him that in the attitude it had adopted towards the Anglo-Persian Agreement the Persian Government had made its own choice. It had deliberately rejected recovering its fortunes with British aid. It had preferred to fall back on the familiar game of playing one foreign country against another, and in the last resort it appeared to be unwilling to accept the caresses of the Soviet Government, caresses which usually ended by strangling those to whom they were applied. He viewed the situation thus created with a feeling of disappointment and almost despair. So far as he could see, the labours of the British Government had been in vain, and he was unaware of any encouragement to persevere in its task. It would be singularly unbecoming in him to make any complaint or utter any reproach against the Persian Government. They were entitled to follow their own course, and if they preferred to find salvation in Moscow they had a perfect right to do so. But he might be permitted, as an old friend, to utter a word of warning, and to remind them that in the long run the main sufferers by the policy that was now being adopted would not be Great Britain or other countries, but would be Persia herself. She appeared to be marching along with deliberate and logical steps towards an end which he did not attempt to forecast, but which could no be otherwise than most unfortunate.

The House adjourned at 5.15.

AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS.

IRISH CROPS AND LIVE STOCK.

The Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland has issued a Grey Book of general abstracts, showing the acreage under crops and the numbers and descriptions of live stock in each county and province of Ireland in the period 1916-19-20. The abstract follows on one published last January, and the totals now given do not differ appreciably from the universal figures then given. In 1920 it was not found practicable to obtain particulars of either crops or live stock on all farms in Ireland, and accordingly the Department confined their efforts to obtaining such information as was sufficient to determine reliable estimates. Very large numbers of farmers of every class in every district in Ireland—farmers whose signed returns for 1st June, 1919, were known to be reliable—were called upon to furnish through the post signed returns of their crops and live stock on 1st June, 1920. The response was exceedingly generous—in fact, the Department received far more returns than were necessary for the purpose in view. The total area under corn crops, green crops, flax, and fruit increased by 72,576 acres from 1914 to 1916, by 637,541 acres from 1916 to 1917, and by 201,626 acres from 1917 to 1918, but decreased by 453,154 acres from 1918 to 1919, and by 73,419 acres from 1919 to 1920. The net result from 1914 to 1920 was an increase in this area of 405,170 acres, or 17.4 per cent.

FLAX.

The area under flax in Ireland increased from 49,253 acres in 1914 to 53,143 acres in 1915, to 91,454 in 1916, to 107,705 acres in 1917, and to 143,355 in 1918; decreased to 95,610 acres in 1919, but increased again to 127,198 in 1920. The only counties outside Ulster which grew over 200 acres of flax in 1920 were Cork with 3,060 acres, Meath 1,694 acres, Mayo 1,662 acres, Sligo 742 acres, Kildare 470, and Wicklow 250 acres. From 1919 to 1920 the total area in Ireland increased by 31,588 acres, or 33.0 per cent. The counties showing the largest increases were Donegal 5,349 acres, Antrim 5,305 acres, Londonderry 4,375 acres, Tyrone 4,127 acres, and Down 2,724 acres.

FRUIT.

The total area under fruit in Ireland increased from 15,567 acres in 1916 to 17,024 in 1917, to 18,503 in 1918, to 19,795 in 1919, and 21,296 in 1920. The increase from 1916 to 1920 was 5,729 acres, or 36.8 per cent. In this interval 28 counties increased their area under fruit. In four counties the areas decreased. Armagh is much the largest fruit-growing county in Ireland, having in 1920 no less than 5,541 acres under fruit. Only three other counties had an area of over 1,000 acres—Antrim with 1,566 acres, Cork 1,350, and Tyrone 1,110 acres.

HAY.

The total area under hay in Ireland, which increased from 2,406,247 acres in 1916 to 2,532,723 in 1917, decreased to 2,470,417 in 1918, increased to 2,520,096 in 1919, but decreased very slightly to 2,518,320 in 1920.

LIVE STOCK.

It appears that from 1st June, 1919, to 1st June, 1920, there was an increase in the numbers of mules and jennets, asses, sheep, pigs, and goats, but a decrease in the numbers of horses and cattle. Again, comparing the numbers in 1920 with the average for the ten years 1910 to 1919, while there were increases in the numbers of horses and cattle, there were decreases in mules and jennets, asses, sheep, pigs, and goats. It was found impracticable to make an estimate of the number of poultry in Ireland in 1919 or in 1920, but the returns indicated an increase.

HORSES.

On 1st June, 1920, the total number of horses in Ireland was practically the same as on 1st June, 1919. Broken horses, on the whole, showed a decrease, and unbroken horses an increase. Horses used for agricultural purposes decreased by 7,859, but horses used for traffic and manufactures increased by 1,050, and those used for amusement and recreation increased by 4,210.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

HOUSING IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Under Section 1 of the Housing (Ireland) Act, 1919, it is the duty of the local authority of every urban district or town to consider the needs of the district or town with respect to the provision of houses for the working classes, and under Section 2 it is mandatory on the local authorities to carry out the requisite schemes within a specific time. When it is borne in mind that in the 127 cities and towns affected by the Act only 10,000 houses have been erected under the various Housing Acts passed since 1866, it is not surprising that there was a very willing compliance by the local authorities in submitting a survey of their housing needs. In all about 50,000 new houses are required; but, unfortunately, the Act is practically a dead letter on account of the insufficient and wrong application of the subsidy obtainable under the regulations made in pursuance of Section 5 of the Act. Proposals to remedy these defects have been formulated.

On reference to page 14 of Dr. Cowan's "Notes on Housing," it will be seen that the Government subsidy in Scotland, after collecting a pretty full rent, amounts to £60 per house per year, and in that country the levy on the rates is limited to 4-5ths of 1d. in the £. In England, where the rate levy is limited to 1d. in the £, Sir A. Mond estimates the permanent cost to the taxpayer of each house built at £60 per year for a period of sixty years.

The number of houses condemned as "unfit for human habitation," included in the 50,000 above-mentioned, is considerable—in Tipperary town alone there are 394. Assuming that the house, etc., can be provided for £800, the "economic rent," estimated at £8½ per cent., amounts to £68. A rent of 5s. per week for a new house from the prospective tenant in such circumstances is considered a high one. On this rent of £13 per year the maximum subsidy obtainable (27s. 6d. per £ rent) realises only £17 17s. 6d., leaving an estimated burden of £37 2s. 6d. per house per year on the rates. Making an allowance for irrecoverable rates, this impost is equivalent to a penny in the £ on the rates of an urban district with a valuation of £10,000 for every house provided. In eighty of the 127 towns the valuation does not exceed £10,000.

The responsibility of the British Government in this matter may be estimated at £3,000,000 per year for a period of sixty years on a capital expenditure of £50,000,000. Ireland's claim can be met by a subsidy, properly applied, not exceeding the amount per house given in respect of the 200,000 houses erected in England, to the cost of which the Irish taxpayer has contributed, without securing, so far, anything in return.—Yours, etc., T. DAWSON.

Tipperary, July 26th, 1921.

THE MILK RING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have seen the notice in your paper from the Cow-keepers' Association that, owing to the drought, they would have to charge the winter price, 3s. per gallon, for their milk. At the same time they could only give us who produce the milk one shilling and one penny per gallon during the months of May and June, delivered in Dublin, and now for this month we get one shilling and threepence per gallon, delivered in Dublin. I can "exist" on those prices, but have no margin of profit.

Why cannot the producers and consumers come to some understanding and not let themselves be fleeced, as they are at present, by the middle-man?—Yours, etc., "FARMER."

Co. Kildare, July 25th, 1921.

THE MAURETANIA.

EFFECTS OF THE FIRE.

CUNARD COMPANY'S STATEMENT.

The fire on the Mauretania at the Southampton Docks was virtually extinguished at eight o'clock on Monday night. Smouldering embers burst into flames again shortly before midnight. The fire brigade were still on the scene, and by one o'clock the outbreak was finally quelled.

The Cunard Company regret to announce that owing to the fire which broke out in the Mauretania on Monday whilst the ship was in dock at Southampton preparing for her voyage to New York, they have had to cancel the sailing of this ship on Saturday, July 30. Passengers booked for the forthcoming Mauretania voyage will be accommodated in other of the company's steamers:—The Carmania, leaving Liverpool next Saturday; the Albania, leaving Liverpool on Wednesday, August 3rd; and the Berengaria from Southampton on the following Saturday, August 6th. The company's officials are now making a close inspection of the ship, and the latest information indicates that the damage is not of such an extensive character as at first appeared.

As at present ascertained the damage is confined to a small amidship section of cabins on E Deck. There is no material damage to the passenger accommodation in other parts of the ship.

The official survey of the Mauretania commenced at Southampton yesterday afternoon. An inspection indicates that the fire started in a cabin on the starboard side of the E Deck, and the portholes being open a strong westerly breeze carried the flames right across the ship, until the whole of the first class berthing accommodation on E Deck, from the bulkhead dividing it from the engine-room forward for about 80 feet, was completely burned out. Some fifty cabins were involved. The floor of the main dining saloon has been severely damaged by fire, and the ironwork buckled. Most of the beautiful and rare wood panelling with which the saloon is decorated has been saved, although scorched in several places, and in others damaged by the axes of the firemen in their efforts to get at the seat of the conflagration. Other parts of the liner have been damaged by heat and water. The fine main staircase is uninjured, except for water stains. Several of the firemen were overcome by smoke and exhaustion, and the eyes of others were so affected that the sufferers had to receive treatment at the local hospital. Great credit is due to the firemen for saving the ship from destruction.

LAUNCH OF A NEW STEAMER.

A new steamer named the Moygannon, which was constructed to the order of the Newry and Provincial Coal Co., Ltd., was successfully launched yesterday afternoon from the Alexandra Road Shipyard of the Dublin Shipbuilders, Ltd. This was the second launch from the same yard within the last few months, and yesterday's event was witnessed by a large number of visitors and spectators.

The Moygannon, which will be capable of carrying 550 tons deadweight on Lloyd's summer free board, has a length over all of 171 feet, breadth mould 25 feet 6 inches, depth 12 feet. The vessel has been specially constructed for the owners' coal-carrying trade under the superintendence of Mr. E. H. MacIlwaine, naval architect, Belfast. The new steamer will have an absolutely clear hold free from obstructions, and this has been achieved by the introduction of special beams and brackets. The Moygannon has been constructed to Lloyd's highest class under special survey, and all the outfit associated with the vessel is of first class quality. The vessel will be towed to Glasgow on Friday, where her machinery will be installed by Messrs. William Beardmore and Co., Coatbridge.

The ceremony of naming the Moygannon was performed by Mrs. James A. Newell, Newry, and, as the vessel gracefully glided down the slips into the basin, there was much cheering on the part of the assembled crowd. The owners were represented by Mr. Fred. Ferris, manager of the Newry and Provincial Coal Co., and Mr. E. H. MacIlwaine, naval architect, Belfast. Mr. W. G. Bailey, chairman, and Mr. William McMillan, managing director, represented the builders, the Dublin Shipbuilders, Ltd.

Subsequently the visitors were entertained by the builders in the large dining hall adjoining the yard. In proposing the toast of the Moygannon and the health of Mrs. Newell, who had performed the naming ceremony, Mr. W. G. Bailey said that at present time there was a great slump in shipbuilding, but he thought that trade would be revived very shortly. There was, he believed, the dawn of a new era in Ireland, and things would be more peaceful and happy than they had been in the past.

Mrs. Newell was then presented with a beautiful watch on behalf of the builders, and with a handsome ring on behalf of the owners, as souvenirs of the interesting occasion.

Mr. James A. Newell, on behalf of his wife, suitably returned thanks.

The toast of the Dublin Shipbuilders, Ltd., was proposed by Mr. Fred. Ferris, who said that the Newry Company was perfectly satisfied with the way that the Dublin Shipbuilders, Ltd., had met them on every occasion. The ss. Moygannon was a well-found vessel in every regard, and he felt satisfied that they had received a steamer that would do credit to the builders. It was their fervent prayer that the company would go on, and lead on, in the capital of Ireland, and that in a few years it would be a very successful company, indeed.

Mr. William McMillan responded, and the toast of the "Trade and Commerce of Dublin" was proposed by Mr. H. J. McConville, J.P., Newry, and replied to by Mr. E. W. Booth, Dublin. The sentiment of "The Ladies" concluded the proceedings.

RAILWAY STATISTICS.

The railway statistics for the month of May will be available in a few days, and they reveal the effects of the coal stoppage on the traffic conveyed during that period. The number of passenger journeys (excluding season ticket holders) was 81,814,378, or 25.63 per cent. less than in March, but the passenger train miles were reduced by no less than 43.20 per cent. As regards freight traffic, the total tonnage conveyed in May, 1921, showed a decline of 21½ million tons, or 5 per cent. compared with May, 1920, and the ton miles worked, a decrease of 70 per cent. Freight train mileage shows a reduction of 60.8 per cent. compared with May, 1920, but the decrease in coal and coke and other heavy traffic again seriously affected the operating results, although not to the same extent as in April. The average waggon and train loads were 3.72 tons and 103¾ tons respectively, as compared with 5.45 tons and 134¼ tons in May, 1920, and the net ton-miles worked per engine hour were 360 as against 435¼ in the corresponding month of last year. The new rolling-stock completed and put into traffic during the month was 37 steam locomotives, 51 passenger carriages, and 2,150 waggons.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

THE NATION'S BUSINESS.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

Mr. Chamberlain has made it clear that in the happy event of an Irish agreement a new session may be summoned to begin in the last week of November or early in December. It was a foregone conclusion that, if a settlement arose from the present negotiations, Parliament would have to meet in order to enact the new measure which it would entail, but many will be disappointed that the Government consider so long an interval to be necessary before a favourable conclusion on the part of the negotiations can be ratified. Mr. Chamberlain has argued that no shorter period would enable an agreement with Ireland to be embodied in legislative form, but his argument was not wholly convincing, for his estimate seemed to accord too closely with the Government's known desire to delay the re-assembling of Parliament as long as possible. Certainly, four months appear a most liberal allowance in view of the importance of concluding an Irish agreement at the earliest possible moment. If, on the other hand, the calamity of a failure in the present negotiations were to befall, Mr. Chamberlain has informed the House that, since Parliament ought to know of that event before it rises, a statement will be made, and opportunity be given to discuss and decide future action. It is impossible to contemplate the situation which would then arise with equanimity, but it would, in any case, demand the closest supervision on the part of Parliament. The Government may, indeed, believe themselves capable of calculating the alternative courses which Irish events may pursue. They have not, however, always proved themselves true prophets, and the anxiety of the country would undoubtedly have been allayed had it known definitely that, whatever might occur in Ireland, Parliament would be in session during months that may well be critical.

IRISH AGREEMENT.

The Parliamentary Correspondent of The Times writes:—There is not to be an autumn session, but there will probably be a session in the autumn. That is the net effect of the announcement made yesterday by Mr. Austen Chamberlain. The force of the distinction is that no legislation will be carried over from this session to the autumn sitting, which, according to the present view of affairs, will devote itself exclusively to Ireland. Satisfactory inferences as to the course of events in Ireland were drawn from Mr. Chamberlain's speech. It is also significant that in well-informed quarters it is now confidently stated that the Prime Minister will attend the Washington Conference on Pacific questions and disarmament. With an unsettled Ireland, it would be impossible for him to leave the country for the long period that the discussions in Washington will certainly occupy. The Government is apparently, therefore, making its plans on the assumption of a favourable outcome of the Irish negotiations.

THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

The Duke of Devonshire, observes The Times editorially, is expected to-day on his return from Canada, where he has filled the office of Governor-General with consistent and high success. Before he left Canada many tributes were paid to his work in the Dominion, all testifying to his tact, his devotion, and his understanding of Canadian conditions. The Duchess has shared with him the burden of a great task, and his success is her success, too. Such labours have their rewards as well as their fatigues and anxieties. It is much that a public man in this country has the knowledge of Canada which the Duke of Devonshire now has, and one of the defects of the political and administrative system of this country is that too little scope is given to the men who have such knowledge.

BRITISH SHIPPING HIT.

In consequence, The Times understands, of lower freights accepted by foreign steamship companies, especially the German lines, from the Continent, the British shipping companies have now decided to reduce their rates very substantially from the United Kingdom to India. The reductions are stated to amount to about 40 per cent. on the basis rate to Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras for cargo by weight, and to about 25 per cent. on measurement cargo, which includes Manchester piece goods. The lower rates are to come into effect as from the end of this month.

GOVERNMENT OF IRELAND ACT.

APPOINTED DAYS.

The London Gazette last night contained an Order-in-Council, dated July 25, dealing with appointed days under the Government of Ireland Act. The following is the full text of the Order:—

Whereas it is provided by the Government of Ireland Act, 1920 (hereinafter referred to as the Act), that the Act shall, except as expressly provided, come into operation on the appointed day, and that the appointed day for the purposes of the Act shall be the first Tuesday in the eighth month after the month of December, 1920 (being the month in which the Act was passed), or such other day not more than seven months earlier or later, as may be fixed by Order of His Majesty-in-Council, either generally or with reference to any particular provision of the Act, and that different days may be appointed for different purposes and different provisions of the Act.

And whereas by an Order-in-Council, dated the 11th day of March, 1921, appointed days were fixed for the purposes of the provisions of the Act, other than the provisions thereby excepted (hereinafter referred to as the excepted provisions).

And whereas the excepted provisions include the provisions of section 44 of the Act, being provisions relative to the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and subsequently by the Government of Ireland (Lord Chancellor of Ireland) Order, 1921, the 27th day of June, 1921, was fixed to be the appointed day for the purposes of the provisions of the said section.

And whereas the 2nd day of August, 1921, is the first Tuesday in the eighth month after the month in which the Act was passed.

Now, therefore, His Majesty is pleased, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows:—

The appointed day for the purposes of any of the excepted provisions which have not come into operation prior to the second day of August, 1921, shall be such later day or days as may hereafter be fixed by Order-in-Council.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AND CHEERFULNESS.

The Prince of Wales's first public engagement since his recent indisposition was a dinner last night of the London Chamber of Commerce.

Replying to the toast of his health, the Prince said that there never had been a time when the efforts of Chambers of Commerce could be more valuable to the commercial world. The transition from war conditions to stable peace conditions was bound to be a trying time, and he often thought that a very good answer to people who complained nowadays was that there had been a great war. He dared to hope that experts could already detect rifts in the clouds of business depression hanging over us. At any rate, cheerfulness was a duty. He had faith in the unquenchable cheerfulness and underlying unity of the nation which carried us through the war. We were a people of great commonsense, which implied a frank recognition of facts, the spirit of give and take, and making the best of things. Were he calling a toast, he would give "The Empire and British Commonsense."

MONAGHAN FARMERS AND THE FLAX INDUSTRY.

REQUEST FOR GOVERNMENT BONUS.

At a largely attended meeting of County Monaghan Farmers' Association, which is affiliated to the Irish Farmers' Union, the following resolutions were adopted, and ordered to be sent to the National Executive:—(1) That we urge upon the Government the necessity of granting a substantial bonus on all flax grown in 1920-21. (2) That the future of the flax industry and kindred trades depends largely on the encouragement which may be given by way of bonus. (3) That the Government by granting a bonus will confer a benefit on the general community by creating more labour in scutch, spinning and weaving mills, and thereby end the high expenditure by way of unemployment benefits now being paid in connection with these industries. (4) That a bonus given as indicated would encourage farmers to market the 1919-20 crop, and also encourage the growing of flax in future years.

EIGHT GIRLS DROWNED.

Owing to the collapse of an iron footbridge leading to the women's baths at Soleure (Switzerland) 40 girls fell into the water, and eight were drowned.

A Christiania message of Tuesday says:—The Tidens Tegn learns that a representative of the Hudson's Bay Company paid a visit some days ago to Finmarken on behalf of the Canadian Government, and bought a herd of seven hundred reindeer for shipment to Baffin Island. A number of Lapps were also engaged to take care of the animals, which will be despatched in September.

UPPER SILESIA.

SUPREME COUNCIL MEETING.

UNITED STATES TO BE REPRESENTED.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE MAY NOT ATTEND.

The date and place of the Allied Conference on Upper Silesia have been definitely fixed. The meeting will take place in Paris on 4th August, but it is highly improbable that Mr. Lloyd George will be there. Great Britain will be represented by Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, who will have at least one other Minister associated with him—probably Mr. Balfour. The new arrangement, which was only completed yesterday, represents a compromise between the views of the French and the British Governments. France has accepted the British suggestion of an early Conference, while Great Britain has agreed to the French proposal that a new Commission shall make investigation in regard to the boundary line. The Commissioners will begin work at once, and they are expected to be ready to report to the Allied Conference, in Paris, on 4th August.

A Paris message of Tuesday says:—According to the procedure which has now been adopted by France, Great Britain, and Italy, the Committee of Experts, who are to examine the Upper Silesian problem before the meeting of the Supreme Council, will assemble on July 28th. It is stated that the United States will be represented at the forthcoming meeting of the Supreme Council by Mr. Harvey, American Ambassador in London.

The experts appointed by the British Government have already left for Paris. There is no question of their going to Silesia.

The Petit Parisien, referring to the Upper Silesia problem, considers that the important fact of Monday is that an agreement has been reached between the Allies as to the necessity of experts meeting to examine the problem next Thursday. This agreement, remarks the paper, gives rise to the hope that the British Government will eventually show itself more conciliating with regard to the despatch of reinforcements. The journal understands that the Supreme Council will meet in Paris, and that a representative of the United States will attend, but not as a simple spectator.

A Berlin telegram of Tuesday says:—The Ostdeutsche Morgenpost states that the Pope has refused the petition of the clergy of Upper Silesia, begging His Holiness to assume the special protection of the Polish clergy in that province, and to nominate another Cardinal in the place of Cardinal Bertram, Bishop of Breslau. The Polish Government has resolved to demand the recall of the Papal Nuncio, Monsignor Ratti.

PRESIDENT HARDING AND THE RAILWAYS.

President Harding, in a special message to Congress, has asked for an extension of the authority of the War Finance Corporation to purchase securities, probably up to five hundred million dollars in value, now in the hands of the railroad administration, in order that the proceeds may be used for the purpose of arranging settlements with the railways. The President declares that, although the railways owe the Government a large sum, the Government also owes the railroads a large sum. He continues:—No added expense and no added investment will be required on the part of the Government, and there will be no added liability of the burden of taxation, but merely the granting of the authority necessary to enable a most useful and efficient Government agency to use its available funds for purchasing securities for which Congress had already authorised the issue, and to turn them into the channels of finance ready to float them.

FIGHTING IN ASIA MINOR.

REPORTED CAPTURE OF GREEK DIVISION.

A Greek communiqué, dated Saturday, says:—According to data collated to the present, the enemy, during the last ten days, lost more than three-quarters of his forces in guns, and in men killed and wounded, and in prisoners and deserters. Most of the divisions lost more than half their strength.

A naval communiqué says:—Our patrols arrested a Kemalist steamer laden with soldiers.

A Paris telegram, dated Tuesday, states:—Constantinople telegrams report that Turkish troops coming from Sanikli have occupied Ushak, capturing a Greek division.

A Paris message of Tuesday says:—The following telegram has been received from Constantinople:—According to reports from Asia Minor, the Turks have re-occupied Yalova and Guelanik, and advanced fourteen kilometres to the west of Yeni-Shehr, in the direction of Brusa. On the southern front the Turks are stated to be advancing.

THREATENED FAMINE IN THE UNITED STATES.

TROUBLES OF THE COTTON BELT.

A Washington telegram, dated Monday, states:—President Harding, alarmed at the reports of a threatened semi-famine, coupled with an epidemic of pellagra in a large section of the southern belt, has requested the Public Health and Red Cross officials immediately to investigate and ascertain what the Government can do to relieve the situation. The President said that the threat of famine and plague seemed to arise through the impossibility of the people selling their cotton, and the resultant shortage of money had apparently deprived many thousands of the variety of food necessary to ward off pellagra. Pellagra, or Italian leprosy, is a severe constitutional or blood disease prevailing in parts of Italy and the South of France. It first manifests itself as an erythematous eruption of the skin, which is followed by lesions of the mucous membrane and a serious disturbance of the nervous system.

SUNDAY LETTER COLLECTION.

MR. KELLAWAY'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Kellaway, in reply to Mr. Pretyman, in the House of Commons yesterday, said that he could not see his way to substitute Sunday evening collection and despatch of letters and mails in place of the present Saturday evening collection, as the change would absorb the greater part of the saving which had been effected.

Mr. Pretyman—Is the right hon. gentleman aware that there are large areas of the country where one cannot get a Monday paper at all, and does he not think that the commercial value of a Monday delivery of letters, which have not lain in the post for 36 hours, is greater than a few hundred thousand pounds?

Mr. Kellaway—That is precisely the difficulty with which every proposal for economy is met. There is a saving of nearly half a million by the present arrangement.

Sir F. Banbury asked whether, in view of the large salaries which were paid to the Post Office officials, they could do a little more work.

Mr. Kellaway—The right hon. baronet cannot be aware that the Post Office to-day has as small a staff as they had in 1914, and have a much larger volume of work.

ATTACK ON MILITARY IN DONEGAL.

CHARGES AGAINST AN EX-SOLDIER.

Before a courtmartial in Derry yesterday, Patrick McAteer, an ex-soldier, Ballybofey, Co. Donegal, was charged with soliciting a soldier to sell arms and ammunition, and also with shooting at an officer of the Rifle Brigade and three riflemen, and having a rifle and seventeen rounds of ammunition.

Evidence was given that in April the accused endeavoured to get a soldier to sell him two rifles and ammunition. He offered to buy the soldier out of the Army, and said that money was no object to him. In the second case, the evidence was that a military party returning from fishing at Lough Eske were ambushed. They returned the fire, and John McGarron was shot dead. When returning to assist McGarron a man, alleged to be the accused, was wounded. A rifle and ammunition were found at the scene. McAteer was found wounded in a "dug-out" on the mountain. A soldier said to him—"You had a good try to get us last Thursday." McAteer replied—"As a soldier, I did my best; only that I went back to assist McGarron, I would not have been hit."

The Court reserved judgment.

THE POPE'S PRAYER FOR PEACE.

The Pope has written a special prayer to be recited at public functions asking God to put an end to the internal struggles which are inflicting several countries, especially Italy.

WAGES IN THE WHOLESALE MANTLE AND COSTUME TRADE.

It is announced in the Dublin Gazette that, in accordance with Section 3 (5) of the Trade Boards Act, 1918, it is proposed to vary the minimum rates of wages for male and female workers in the wholesale mantle and costume trade in Ireland.

PEACE MOVEMENT.

STATEMENT BY MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

MERELY PRINCIPLES PROPOSED.

QUESTION OF LEGISLATION.

Speaking in the House of Commons yesterday on the business for the remainder of the session, Mr. Austen Chamberlain referred to the Irish peace negotiations. He said:—There is, perhaps, one other point that I ought to deal with. It may be in the minds of many members of the House—I refer to Ireland and the negotiations which have been proceeding, but which for the moment are suspended, though in existence, between the Government and parties in Ireland. If these negotiations result—as I earnestly hope they may—(hear, hear)—in a settlement which is honourable and satisfactory to the different parties concerned, and if, therefore, Irish peace be in sight—(hear, hear)—very early consideration by Parliament might be necessary; but as far as we can see in that happy contingency agreement could not have reached the point at which it could be embodied in legislation to be submitted to this House at an early date. At present merely the outlines or principles of a settlement have been proposed. To those no answer has yet been received. If they are accepted, they may become the basis for a conference. Then many matters of detail would remain for discussion and adjustment, and when all is concluded time must be given for embodying the result in satisfactory statutory form. Accordingly we do not anticipate that, in the most hopeful contingency for which we all hope, and which would be the best of all—of agreement being reached—an early session of Parliament would be required, or, indeed, possible. In such a case we have in mind the possibility of summoning a new session, to begin early in December, or, perhaps, in the last week in November, to deal with that particular question before Christmas, and then go on with the ordinary business of the new session in the new year after the Christmas adjournment.

ANOTHER CONTINGENCY.

One other contingency I devoutly pray may not be realised, but I should, perhaps, mention it, for, if I do not, I may be asked what would the Government suggest in such a case. It is the contingency that the negotiations, instead of meeting with success, should fail. In that case I think we must know before Parliament prorogues what the prospects are. A statement must certainly be made before Parliament prorogues, and discussed, if need be, and we can take such decisions as are necessary; but in the present circumstances of the situation I hope that the happier result will follow, and, if that is the case, then I anticipate that a meeting at the end of November or in December would probably afford the earliest opportunity at which the legislation required by the settlement could be ready for the consideration of Parliament.

STATEMENT IN THE LORDS.

In the House of Lords yesterday the Lord Chancellor informed Lord Salisbury that the Government hoped and expected to be in a position to make a statement about Ireland before the House adjourns.

NOTHING TO REPORT IN DUBLIN.

Mr. de Valera spent another busy day at the Dublin Mansion House yesterday, and received many callers.

The Press representatives were informed by Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, M.P., that there was nothing to communicate. A statement on behalf of the Sinn Fein leaders probably will be issued in the course of a few days.

FUTURE OF THE POLICE FORCES.

A meeting of the Representative Body of the Royal Irish Constabulary has been assembled, and is now occupied in discussing the future of the Force as it may be affected by the Better Government of Ireland Act or by any other Act which may alter the present status of the Force in Ireland.

The meeting is a preliminary one, as nothing is known of the final proposals of the Government as to the future of the Royal Irish Constabulary. In view of possible developments it is naturally of importance that the Force should have a free interchange of views, so as to ensure that the interests of the members of the Force, whatever their service, shall not be overlooked.

The Auxiliary Division is taking no part in the meeting. That Force rests on an entirely different footing, and the Prime Minister's statement in the House of Commons regarding it was that its position would receive careful consideration. Nothing has been settled as to the future of the Auxiliary Division, and until there is a definite settlement there is no question of disbanding the Division.

THE TRUCE.

Mr. Duggan, the chief Sinn Fein liaison officer for Ireland, states that no arrangement has yet been arrived at with regard to the difficulty which has arisen in the carrying out of their respective duties by Government officials and the officials of the Irish Republican Army, whose duties are to preserve the peace in the martial law area.

THE ATHLONE AREA.

Commandant Fintan Murphy, liaison officer for the Athlone area, returned to Athlone on Monday night, after a tour of Westmeath, Longford, Roscommon, Leitrim, and Sligo. He reports that he found everything satisfactory in these counties, and that the terms of the truce are being honourably observed by both sides. As Commandant Murphy's name is being used by unauthorised persons latterly, in furtherance of local disputes in reference to land and other questions, he has made the following statement:—"It has come to my knowledge that parties are using my name without my authority for purposes of their own. Any communication or order that I wish to issue will be issued on my official notepaper, and none other has any authority."

THE SINN FEIN FLAG.

Brigadier-General Colvin asked the Prime Minister, in the House of Commons yesterday, if the Sinn Fein flag had at any time been recognised and saluted by His Majesty's forces.

Mr. Chamberlain—No, sir.

DUBLIN WINTER GARDENS SCENE.

CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED MURDER.

ACCUSED FURTHER REMANDED.

The young man who was remanded last Saturday on a charge of attempting to murder A. Hayes, 1 Windsor villas, Fairview, in the Winter Gardens, Dublin, on the previous night by firing a shot from a revolver at him, and with having a revolver without a permit or licence, was again brought forward in custody, in the Southern Police Court, before Mr. Cooper, K.C., yesterday.

It is understood that since first remanded he gave his name as Joseph Dolan and his address as Ellesmere avenue, off Prussia street.

Mr. O'Flaherty, of the Chief Crown Solicitor's office, who prosecuted, said that he proposed to examine only one witness and then ask for a remand for one week. The injured man was still in hospital, and was in a very bad condition.

Mr. P. H. O'Brien, solicitor, appeared for the accused.

Mr. Cooper suggested that it would be well to have a deposition taken from the injured man, and Mr. O'Flaherty said that he would consider that.

Leo Reilly was called and stated that he was sitting with Hayes in the Winter Gardens on Friday night at a little after 10 o'clock. Some people were sitting behind him, and he heard Hayes say, "What are you staring at?" or words to that effect. One of the men said, "What are you staring at?" Hayes jumped up from his seat and said "What?" Another man also jumped from his seat. Witness jumped up and saw a man produce a revolver, but he would not swear that the accused was that man. The man was dressed like the accused and was of dark appearance. When the man produced the revolver Hayes and some one whom witness did not know made a dive for him, and simultaneously a third man put his hand into his pocket for a gun.

To Mr. Cooper—Hayes was the first to grab for the revolver. There were two others afterwards. Witness made a grab for the revolver and then heard a shot. Half a minute elapsed from the time of the first grab to the discharge of the revolver. He could not say whether the revolver was discharged deliberately or not. He did not see anyone hit after the shot went off. A minute afterwards he heard Hayes moaning. Hayes was wounded in the right thigh. Witness was grappling with the other man. Witness then went to get brandy.

This was all the evidence produced, and the accused was remanded for a week.

THE PREMIER'S HOLIDAYS.

The arrangements for the Prime Minister's holidays are not yet completed, but it has been decided that in view of the home situation he will certainly not go abroad.

NO AUTUMN SESSION.

STATEMENT BY MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

URGENCY OF THE RAILWAYS BILL.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

It was agreed, on the motion of Mr. Chamberlain, that for the remainder of the session the House should meet at 11 o'clock and rise at 4 o'clock, instead of 5 o'clock, and that two additional days be allotted to the business of Supply.

Mr. Chamberlain further proposed that Government business be proceeded with for the remainder of the session after 11 o'clock, and indicated the business that the Government proposed to deal with before the end of the session. He said that the outstanding feature in the present Parliamentary situation was the Railways Bill, as it was necessary to obtain that before Parliament was prorogued. It was not possible to contemplate the postponement of a decision on that bill until the autumn, and a special meeting of Parliament in the autumn for the purpose—for reasons already explained—with the decontrol of the railways, and the financial and other difficulties which would follow if this measure did not receive the Royal assent on an early date. Accordingly the Government proposed to take every available day to complete the five days allotted to the report stage and third reading of the bill. It would be taken on Wednesday, July 27; Monday and Tuesday, August 1 and 2; Monday and Tuesday, August 8 and 9, on which days it would complete its stages in that House, and go to the House of Lords. They proposed to take Supply on Thursday, July 28, and on Wednesday and Thursday, August 3 and 4, when the allotted days would expire, and Supply be terminated. On the completion of the Railways Bill the Government would take the three remaining allotted days for the Safeguarding of Industries Bill—(ironical cheers)—which he hoped would reach the House of Lords not later than August 15.

NECESSARY BILLS.

The following were the other bills which it was necessary to pass into law:—Irish Railways (Settlement of Claims) Bill, Isle of Man Customs Bill, Police Bill, Public Works Loan Bill, Telegraph (Money) Bill, War Pensions Bill, War Undertakings Bill, Modification of War Pensions Bill: also the following bills already passed that House, and which might require consideration in connection with amendments by the House of Lords:—The Church of Scotland Bill, Corn Production Act (Repeal) Bill, Greenwich Hospital Bill, Housing (Scotland No. 2) Bill, Representation of the People (No. 2) Bill. It would also be necessary to pass into law the Expiring Laws Continuance Bill and the Consolidated Fund Bill.

BILLS DROPPED.

It was not intended to proceed with the Summer Time Bill—(laughter)—the Salmon and Fresh Water Fisheries Bill, the Electricity Supply Bill, and the Clinical Thermometer Bill. The other bills on the paper would not be pressed unless they could be passed with general consent. He believed that many of them were desired in all quarters of the House, and were in the ordinary sense non-contentious—The Criminal Law (Amendment) Bill, Criminal Law Procedure (Scotland) Bill, Education Consolidation Bill, Government of Burmah Bill, Juries Emergency Provisions Renewal Bill, Licensing No. 2 Bill, Law of Property Bill, Land Settlement Amendment Bill, Territorial Army and Militia Bill, Trust Scotland Bill, Admiralty Pensions Bill. There was a number of bills which had not yet been presented, but which, in deference to the Public Accounts Committee, the Government would present, but which could only be passed with general consent. One was the amendment of the Exchequer and Audit Act, which the Committee thought should be brought before the House.

THE ADJOURNMENT.

I think, added Mr. Chamberlain, that it might be possible for the House to rise certainly not later than August 26th—(cries of "Oh")—and possibly on a date between August 19th and 26th. The 19th is the earliest possible date, and the 26th probably the latest possible date, although, of course, a good deal depends upon what is done in another place, and the amount of time that might be required for the consideration of measures and the character of the amendments that they make. The alternative is, of course, an autumn session. (Cheers.) The enthusiastic cheers with which the suggestion of an autumn session is received in certain quarters is no measure of a real desire to return in the autumn. I think it will be generally agreed that the inconvenience, and more than inconvenience, to the public service and the strain upon members which will be involved in an autumn session is not to be contemplated unless the adoption of that expedient greatly lightens our labours at the present time and enables us to adjourn at a much earlier date. The railway situation is the dominant factor in the whole position. We cannot take the responsibility of adjourning Parliament and leaving the railway question unsettled and the whole of railway finance in confusion. It was desirable, he continued, and every member knew it in his heart, that there should not be an autumn session again this year. In twelve out of the last thirteen years there had been an autumn session. This Parliament had been a very hard-worked Parliament, and some holiday was necessary in order that the House might be in a position to discharge its duties to the country next year.

Mr. Chamberlain then referred to the Irish situation and to the possibility of a special session of Parliament to deal with special Irish legislation.

SIR DONALD MACLEAN.

Sir Donald Maclean said that if it was evident after the reference to Ireland that it would be necessary for Parliament to sit in the autumn, he thought that it would be better for Parliament to rise, say, next week and come back in November to finish the business. He did not take the view that it was necessary to get the Railways Bill through by August 15. The money had not to be found until the end of December, and ample time should be given to the House of Lords to deal with the measure. (Hear, hear.) He thought it was also important that the Licensing Bill should be passed before Parliament was prorogued. Dealing with what he described as the Government's mismanagement of business, he said that, with one or two exceptions, nobody believed in the safeguarding of Industries Bill, and a great deal of time had been taken up with the reversal of measures already passed. (Hear, hear.) There were the questions of housing and finance, which required further attention. (Hear, hear.) What the Leader of the House was asking for was a letter of licence to the Government for six months. In face of the world and the home situation, the demand for financial control and the need for the proper regulation of legislation, it was not in the interests of the public or of Parliament that the motion should be agreed to. (Opposition cheers.)

MR. CLYNES.

Mr. Clynes said that he considered that the time of Parliament had been largely wasted. Parliament should sit earlier in the day rather than later at night. The mockery of late sittings should be avoided. (Hear, hear.) In view of the growing pressure of Parliamentary work and responsibility, an autumn session must be accepted now as the normal condition of things. He moved that the motion should operate until the 31st August instead of "for the remainder of the session."

This was accepted by the Government and agreed to.

Lord Robert Cecil said that he considered that the position of affairs with regard to Ireland would compel a meeting of Parliament in the autumn. The House should be sitting while the estimates for the coming year were being farmed, in order that drastic economy might be enforced. He wished to move an amendment providing that the House should meet at noon rather than sit late at night, but the Speaker ruled that that would be out of order, as it would affect the Standing Orders of the House.

After further discussion, the resolution as amended was carried by 277 to 61.

REMARKABLE APPEAL CASE.

MRS. GOODING VINDICATED.

HOME OFFICE STATEMENT.

In reply to numerous inquiries, the Home Office last night issued the following statement regarding the case of Mrs. Rose Emma Gooding, whose convictions were quashed by the Court of Criminal Appeal on Monday:—

In December last Mrs. Gooding was convicted, at Lewes Assizes, of publishing, in Littlehampton, certain libellous postcards and letters, and was sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment. In March last she was again convicted, at Lewes Assizes, of publishing further libels, which were in precisely the same handwriting as those which had formed the subject of the prosecution in December. She received a sentence of twelve months' imprisonment. Both of these prosecutions were prosecutions by the person against whom the libels were mainly directed. They were not undertaken by the Director of Public Prosecutions or by the police. Mrs. Gooding was convicted for the second time on March 2nd, and, after she had been in custody for several weeks, further libels, in the same handwriting, began to be published in Littlehampton. These were brought to the notice of the Director of Public Prosecutions and the Home Office. The Home Secretary at once instituted inquiries, and, as the result of the information he obtained, decided to refer both of the convictions to the Court of Criminal Appeal. It was clearly demonstrated that Mrs. Gooding could have been in no way responsible for the authorship or publication of the libellous communications which had appeared while she was in prison, and up to a date as recent as June 15th, and her innocence of the offences of which she had twice been convicted was thus established.

PARLIAMENT.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

SIR ROBERT HORNE'S DEFENCE.

THE SALARIES AND BONUS.

The House of Commons yesterday went into Committee of Supply on the Civil Services Estimates.

On a vote of £235,388 for salaries and expenses in the Treasury department,

Sir Robert Horne made a statement on the subject of the duties and remuneration of civil servants. He said the service had been unjustly attacked. Some of the criticism of civil servants indulged in in the Press had been stupid, and some had been scurrilous. We in this country had the finest civil service in the world. It was imbued with the highest traditions of conduct and honour, and was animated by an incomparable spirit of responsibility and duty. As to the salaries paid to the men occupying higher positions in the service, it was not too much to say that these men had anxieties and responsibilities quite as great as those of a manager in one of the biggest of our commercial undertakings. The salaries that these men received was fixed at £3,000 a year. The average salary paid to a railway manager was £5,700, that to a bank manager was £7,200, and to a manager of an insurance company £8,600. He had worked long hours himself, but he took off his hat to a civil servant of the First Division, who was more devoted to duty than anyone in any other business in the country. The Asquith Committee expressed the view that £3,000 a year was a proper salary to pay these men.

GETTING DOWN TO BEDROCK.

Dealing with the criticism that since the war a large number of civil servants had dug themselves in and refused to be ousted, he said that he was not content to accept the present situation, and say that it was all right. On the contrary, he was doing his very utmost in connection with all these matters of expenditure to get it right down to bed-rock, and discover what was the real minimum of staff required to carry on the essential services of the country. Whatever was necessary to be done, he should certainly attempt to do. The Committee ought not to judge harshly until they knew the facts. They might criticise the Government if they liked; he was dealing with criticisms of the Civil Service. Leaving out of account the new departments there had been an addition of 10 per cent. That required investigation which he should apply his mind to, but until there had been an investigation he asked members to suspend judgment. The work of the Revenue departments had increased enormously since the war. The Admiralty and War Office were engaged in liquidating war contracts. He turned to the third matter—the bonus scheme. It might surprise the Committee to learn that 50 per cent. of the 300,000 Civil Servants entitled to the bonus only got before the war an average of less than 35s. weekly. Eighty-eight per cent. of the whole had salaries of less than £200 a year. There were only 6,000 in the service who had over £500 a year, and only 770 with salaries of over £1,000. These 770 had to supervise over half a million people and workers. The bonus scheme was not more favourable than that given in other industries, and was less favourable than some. He did not understand the attitude of those who said that the Civil Service must be recruited from cheap labour. Those who tried it would get the Civil Service that they deserved.

REDUCING THE BONUS.

Some people suggested that the bonus should be taken away altogether. That was an entirely impracticable position. Looking at the matter as fairly as they could they had come to the conclusion that, so far as salaries under £500 a year was concerned, they ought not to take anything off the bonus being paid. The recipients would only suffer the ordinary automatic reduction. It was from them that the ten millions which would come off in September would mainly come, but he proposed that no bonus at all should be paid on any salary over £2,000 a year. After September 1st nobody with a salary of £2,000 and upwards would receive any bonus, and nobody's salary would be brought above £2,000 by the payment of any bonus. Then on salaries from £500 to £2,000, in addition to the automatic reduction in September, he proposed that there should be taken off what remained of the bonus after the reduction—10 per cent. in the case of people with salaries from £500 to £700 a year, 15 per cent. in the case of £800 salaries, 20 per cent. in the case of £900 salaries, and so on until they get an extra reduction of 60 per cent. in addition to the automatic reduction in the case of £1,700 salaries. This additional reduction as from September 1st represented some half a million a year.

THE COST OF THE DEPARTMENTS.

Captain W. Benn said that the Chancellor had not said a single word about effecting a 20 per cent. reduction in the cost of the departments, and had merely announced a reduction amounting to half a million a year on a total salary list of 65 millions. That was not applying the axe to the root of the evil. He moved a reduction of the vote by £100.

Sir H. Craik ridiculed the comparison between the head of a Civil Service department and the manager of a city firm. He wished to see compulsory reductions made in staffs.

Mr. C. Edwards said that he did not think that Civil Servants were overpaid.

Lord E. Percy said that he thought the Whitley Council might be asked to make a monthly or two monthly revisions of the bonus.

Mr. G. Locker-Lampson said that he believed that we would never get true economy until Government departments were rationed in their expenditure. He was disappointed at the Chancellor's speech. Nobody wished to attack the Civil Service as a service. The Chancellor must do much more than make little cuts here and there. He was not sure that the Chancellor had not been too severe on the lower salaries and not severe enough on the higher salaries.

Mr. Lorden said that he considered that the whole Civil Service wanted reorganising on a business-like basis.

THE TAXPAYER'S BURDEN.

Mr. Esmond Harmsworth said that it was the policy of the Government that was responsible for the excessive number of Civil Servants employed. Since the armistice the Government had wrenched from the taxpayers three thousand millions in taxation, and realised 582 millions for war stores. Nevertheless, the National Debt had been increased in the same period by 250 millions.

Sir C. Oman said that he considered that it was insane to raise the higher grade fixed salaries at the present time.

Mr. Clynes said that he considered that the Government proposals involved great injustice to the middle classes, who had been held up as suffering most as a result of the war. The Chancellor's proposals were, no doubt, a concession to the clamour for economy.

Colonel Walter Guinness raised the question of ex-Service men engaged on the temporary staff of the Civil Service, of whom, he said, 2,000 had received notice during the past fortnight. He also understood that 8,000 or 9,000 men who fought in the war had been taken off the permanent and put on the temporary staff. He was told that a preference was being shown to non-Service men, and that conscientious objectors had all been reinstated.

THE GOVERNMENT'S POSITION.

Mr. H. Young, replying on the debate, maintained that while the reductions made by the super-cut would be very substantial, they were not too brutally serious. Dealing with the attack made by Captain W. Benn, he pointed out that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had already promised to make a statement before the end of the session as to economies to be effected in the preliminary estimates for next year, which were expected before the end of the present month from the departments. After the estimates were received a substantial amount of work would have to be done in connection with them, therefore he failed to see the relevance of Captain Benn's attack at that moment. The number of ex-Service men in the employment of the Government had increased considerably, and 260 conscientious objectors had been taken back, having fulfilled all the requirements imposed on them by the tribunals.

Sir Robert Horne moved the closure, and it was carried by 205 to 55.

Captain W. Benn's motion for reduction was negatived by 180 to 71.

The debate was adjourned.

SHOT BY STRANGERS.

STRANGE AFFAIR NEAR NAVAN.

Our Navan Correspondent states that Joseph FitzSimons, a labourer, aged about 35 years, residing at Moynalvey, a small village between Summerhill and Dunshaughlin, was admitted to the Navan Hospital on Monday suffering from a revolver wound in the left thigh. The shooting, which is devoid of political significance, took place under singular circumstances.

At about 11 o'clock on Saturday night a group of labouring men were standing outside O'Brien's licensed premises in Moynalvey. Two men of small stature, and well dressed, came up to the shop, knocked, and were not admitted, as it was after closing hour. The strangers came over to the group of local men, amongst whom was FitzSimons. They asked if they could get a drink in the publichouse. They also asked the men for their names.

It is stated that FitzSimons refused to give his name. Then one of the men pulled out a revolver, and, it is alleged, fired into the crowd, and the bullet struck FitzSimons. The second man was also armed. The labourers ran to FitzSimons's help, and carried him home. It is alleged that the two strange men knocked, got into the publichouse, and took some things.

The Dunshaughlin police were informed of the occurrence, and visited the place. FitzSimons is at present in hospital under Surgeon Timmons's care, and it is difficult to say whether he is out of danger yet. The bullet made a clean passage through the thigh. The two strangers have so far escaped, and no clue to their identity has been found.

PERSIA'S CHOICE.

STATEMENT BY LORD CURZON.

In the House of Lords yesterday,

The Corn Production Acts Repeal Bill was read a first time, and Lord Strachie gave notice to move its rejection on the second reading.

The Merchant Shipping Bill passed through Committee.

The Corn Sales Bill, the Church of Scotland Bill, and the Coroners Remuneration Bill were read a third time.

THE PERSIAN SITUATION.

The Marquis Curzon, replying to questions from Lord Lamington and Lord Sydenham, said that it was a little difficult for anyone, even from the inside, to follow the kaleidoscopic changes that had taken place in Persia since they last debated the subject in November last year. Prime Minister had succeeded Prime Minister with almost bewildering rapidity, and there had been almost as many Persian policies as Prime Ministers. It was in the midst of this perplexing jumble of events that a Soviet Minister appeared on the scene at Teheran in April, and since his arrival he had pursued the familiar Bolshevik methods, whilst always in the background there was the presence of Soviet forces on Persian territory. It seemed to him that in the attitude it had adopted towards the Anglo-Persian Agreement the Persian Government had made its own choice. It had deliberately rejected recovering its fortunes with British aid. It had preferred to fall back on the familiar game of playing one foreign country against another, and in the last resort it appeared to be unwilling to accept the caresses of the Soviet Government, caresses which usually ended by strangling those to whom they were applied. He viewed the situation thus created with a feeling of disappointment and almost despair. So far as he could see, the labours of the British Government had been in vain, and he was unaware of any encouragement to persevere in its task. It would be singularly unbecoming in him to make any complaint or utter any reproach against the Persian Government. They were entitled to follow their own course, and if they preferred to find salvation in Moscow they had a perfect right to do so. But he might be permitted, as an old friend, to utter a word of warning, and to remind them that in the long run the main sufferers by the policy that was now being adopted would not be Great Britain or other countries, but would be Persia herself. She appeared to be marching along with deliberate and logical steps towards an end which he did not attempt to forecast, but which could no be otherwise than most unfortunate.

The House adjourned at 5.15.

AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS.

IRISH CROPS AND LIVE STOCK.

The Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland has issued a Grey Book of general abstracts, showing the acreage under crops and the numbers and descriptions of live stock in each county and province of Ireland in the period 1916-19-20. The abstract follows on one published last January, and the totals now given do not differ appreciably from the universal figures then given. In 1920 it was not found practicable to obtain particulars of either crops or live stock on all farms in Ireland, and accordingly the Department confined their efforts to obtaining such information as was sufficient to determine reliable estimates. Very large numbers of farmers of every class in every district in Ireland—farmers whose signed returns for 1st June, 1919, were known to be reliable—were called upon to furnish through the post signed returns of their crops and live stock on 1st June, 1920. The response was exceedingly generous—in fact, the Department received far more returns than were necessary for the purpose in view. The total area under corn crops, green crops, flax, and fruit increased by 72,576 acres from 1914 to 1916, by 657,541 acres from 1916 to 1917, and by 201,626 acres from 1917 to 1918, but decreased by 453,154 acres from 1918 to 1919, and by 73,419 acres from 1919 to 1920. The net result from 1914 to 1920 was an increase in this area of 405,170 acres, or 17.4 per cent.

FLAX.

The area under flax in Ireland increased from 49,253 acres in 1914 to 53,143 acres in 1915, to 91,454 in 1916, to 107,705 acres in 1917, and to 143,355 in 1918; decreased to 95,610 acres in 1919, but increased again to 127,198 in 1920. The only counties outside Ulster which grew over 200 acres of flax in 1920 were Cork with 3,060 acres, Meath 1,694 acres, Mayo 1,662 acres, Sligo 742 acres, Kildare 470, and Wicklow 250 acres. From 1919 to 1920 the total area in Ireland increased by 31,588 acres, or 33.0 per cent. The counties showing the largest increases were Donegal 5,349 acres, Antrim 5,305 acres, Londonderry 4,375 acres, Tyrone 4,127 acres, and Down 2,724 acres.

FRUIT.

The total area under fruit in Ireland increased from 15,567 acres in 1916 to 17,024 in 1917, to 18,503 in 1918, to 19,795 in 1919, and 21,296 in 1920. The increase from 1916 to 1920 was 5,729 acres, or 36.8 per cent. In this interval 28 counties increased their area under fruit. In four counties the areas decreased. Armagh is much the largest fruit-growing county in Ireland, having in 1920 no less than 5,541 acres under fruit. Only three other counties had an area of over 1,000 acres—Antrim with 1,566 acres, Cork 1,350, and Tyrone 1,110 acres.

HAY.

The total area under hay in Ireland, which increased from 2,406,247 acres in 1916 to 2,532,723 in 1917, decreased to 2,470,417 in 1918, increased to 2,520,096 in 1919, but decreased very slightly to 2,518,320 in 1920.

LIVE STOCK.

It appears that from 1st June, 1919, to 1st June, 1920, there was an increase in the numbers of mules and jennets, asses, sheep, pigs, and goats, but a decrease in the numbers of horses and cattle. Again, comparing the numbers in 1920 with the average for the ten years 1910 to 1919, while there were increases in the numbers of horses and cattle, there were decreases in mules and jennets, asses, sheep, pigs, and goats. It was found impracticable to make an estimate of the number of poultry in Ireland in 1919 or in 1920, but the returns indicated an increase.

HORSES.

On 1st June, 1920, the total number of horses in Ireland was practically the same as on 1st June, 1919. Broken horses, on the whole, showed a decrease, and unbroken horses an increase. Horses used for agricultural purposes decreased by 7,859, but horses used for traffic and manufactures increased by 1,050, and those used for amusement and recreation increased by 4,210.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

HOUSING IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Under Section 1 of the Housing (Ireland) Act, 1919, it is the duty of the local authority of every urban district or town to consider the needs of the district or town with respect to the provision of houses for the working classes, and under Section 2 it is mandatory on the local authorities to carry out the requisite schemes within a specific time. When it is borne in mind that in the 127 cities and towns affected by the Act only 10,000 houses have been erected under the various Housing Acts passed since 1866, it is not surprising that there was a very willing compliance by the local authorities in submitting a survey of their housing needs. In all about 50,000 new houses are required; but, unfortunately, the Act is practically a dead letter on account of the insufficient and wrong application of the subsidy obtainable under the regulations made in pursuance of Section 5 of the Act. Proposals to remedy these defects have been formulated.

On reference to page 14 of Dr. Cowan's "Notes on Housing," it will be seen that the Government subsidy in Scotland, after collecting a pretty full rent, amounts to £60 per house per year, and in that country the levy on the rates is limited to 4-5ths of 1d. in the £. In England, where the rate levy is limited to 1d. in the £, Sir A. Mond estimates the permanent cost to the taxpayer of each house built at £60 per year for a period of sixty years.

The number of houses condemned as "unfit for human habitation," included in the 50,000 above-mentioned, is considerable—in Tipperary town alone there are 394. Assuming that the house, etc., can be provided for £800, the "economic rent," estimated at 8½ per cent., amounts to £68. A rent of 5s. per week for a new house from the prospective tenant in such circumstances is considered a high one. On this rent of £13 per year the maximum subsidy obtainable (27s. 6d. per £ rent) realises only £17 17s. 6d., leaving an estimated burden of £37 2s. 6d. per house per year on the rates. Making an allowance for irrecoverable rates, this impost is equivalent to a penny in the £ on the rates of an urban district with a valuation of £10,000 for every house provided. In eighty of the 127 towns the valuation does not exceed £10,000.

The responsibility of the British Government in this matter may be estimated at £3,000,000 per year for a period of sixty years on a capital expenditure of £50,000,000. Ireland's claim can be met by a subsidy, properly applied, not exceeding the amount per house given in respect of the 200,000 houses erected in England, to the cost of which the Irish taxpayer has contributed, without securing, so far, anything in return.—Yours, etc.,

T. DAWSON.

THE MILK RING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have seen the notice in your paper from the Cow-keepers' Association that, owing to the drought, they would have to charge the winter price, 3s. per gallon, for their milk. At the same time they could only give us who produce the milk one shilling and one penny per gallon during the months of May and June, delivered in Dublin, and now for this month we get one shilling and threepence per gallon, delivered in Dublin. I can "exist" on those prices, but have no margin of profit.

Why cannot the producers and consumers come to some understanding and not let themselves be fleeced, as they are at present, by the middle-man?—Yours, etc.,

"FARMER."

THE MAURETANIA.

EFFECTS OF THE FIRE.

CUNARD COMPANY'S STATEMENT.

The fire on the Mauretania at the Southampton Docks was virtually extinguished at eight o'clock on Monday night. Smouldering embers burst into flames again shortly before midnight. The fire brigade were still on the scene, and by one o'clock the outbreak was finally quelled.

The Cunard Company regret to announce that owing to the fire which broke out in the Mauretania on Monday whilst the ship was in dock at Southampton preparing for her voyage to New York, they have had to cancel the sailing of this ship on Saturday, July 30. Passengers booked for the forthcoming Mauretania voyage will be accommodated in other of the company's steamers:—The Carmania, leaving Liverpool next Saturday; the Albania, leaving Liverpool on Wednesday, August 3rd; and the Berengaria from Southampton on the following Saturday, August 6th. The company's officials are now making a close inspection of the ship, and the latest information indicates that the damage is not of such an extensive character as at first appeared.

As at present ascertained the damage is confined to a small amidship section of cabins on E Deck. There is no material damage to the passenger accommodation in other parts of the ship.

The official survey of the Mauretania commenced at Southampton yesterday afternoon. An inspection indicates that the fire started in a cabin on the starboard side of the E Deck, and the portholes being open a strong westerly breeze carried the flames right across the ship, until the whole of the first class berthing accommodation on E Deck, from the bulkhead dividing it from the engine-room forward for about 80 feet, was completely burned out. Some fifty cabins were involved. The floor of the main dining saloon has been severely damaged by fire, and the ironwork buckled. Most of the beautiful and rare wood panelling with which the saloon is decorated has been saved, although scorched in several places, and in others damaged by the axes of the firemen in their efforts to get at the seat of the conflagration. Other parts of the liner have been damaged by heat and water. The fine main staircase is uninjured, except for water stains. Several of the firemen were overcome by smoke and exhaustion, and the eyes of others were so affected that the sufferers had to receive treatment at the local hospital. Great credit is due to the firemen for saving the ship from destruction.

LAUNCH OF A NEW STEAMER.

A new steamer named the Moygannon, which was constructed to the order of the Newry and Provincial Coal Co., Ltd., was successfully launched yesterday afternoon from the Alexandra Road Shipyard of the Dublin Shipbuilders, Ltd. This was the second launch from the same yard within the last few months, and yesterday's event was witnessed by a large number of visitors and spectators.

The Moygannon, which will be capable of carrying 550 tons deadweight on Lloyd's summer free board, has a length over all of 171 feet, breadth mould 25 feet 6 inches, depth 12 feet. The vessel has been specially constructed for the owners' coal-carrying trade under the superintendence of Mr. E. H. MacIlwaine, naval architect, Belfast. The new steamer will have an absolutely clear hold free from obstructions, and this has been achieved by the introduction of special beams and brackets. The Moygannon has been constructed to Lloyd's highest class under special survey, and all the outfit associated with the vessel is of first class quality. The vessel will be towed to Glasgow on Friday, where her machinery will be installed by Messrs. William Beardmore and Co., Coatbridge.

The ceremony of naming the Moygannon was performed by Mrs. James A. Newell, Newry, and, as the vessel gracefully glided down the slips into the basin, there was much cheering on the part of the assembled crowd. The owners were represented by Mr. Fred. Ferris, manager of the Newry and Provincial Coal Co., and Mr. E. H. MacIlwaine, naval architect, Belfast. Mr. W. G. Bailey, chairman, and Mr. William McMillan, managing director, represented the builders, the Dublin Shipbuilders, Ltd.

Subsequently the visitors were entertained by the builders in the large dining hall adjoining the yard. In proposing the toast of the Moygannon and the health of Mrs. Newell, who had performed the naming ceremony, Mr. W. G. Bailey said that at present time there was a great slump in shipbuilding, but he thought that trade would be revived very shortly. There was, he believed, the dawn of a new era in Ireland, and things would be more peaceful and happy than they had been in the past.

Mrs. Newell was then presented with a beautiful watch on behalf of the builders, and with a handsome ring on behalf of the owners, as souvenirs of the interesting occasion.

Mr. James A. Newell, on behalf of his wife, suitably returned thanks.

The toast of the Dublin Shipbuilders, Ltd., was proposed by Mr. Fred. Ferris, who said that the Newry Company was perfectly satisfied with the way that the Dublin Shipbuilders, Ltd., had met them on every occasion. The ss. Moygannon was a well-found vessel in every regard, and he felt satisfied that they had received a steamer that would do credit to the builders. It was their fervent prayer that the company would go on, and lead on, in the capital of Ireland, and that in a few years it would be a very successful company, indeed.

Mr. William McMillan responded, and the toast of the "Trade and Commerce of Dublin" was proposed by Mr. H. J. McConville, J.P., Newry, and replied to by Mr. E. W. Booth, Dublin. The sentiment of "The Ladies" concluded the proceedings.

RAILWAY STATISTICS.

The railway statistics for the month of May will be available in a few days, and they reveal the effects of the coal stoppage on the traffic conveyed during that period. The number of passenger journeys (excluding season ticket holders) was 81,814,378, or 25.63 per cent. less than in March, but the passenger train-miles were reduced by no less than 43.20 per cent. As regards freight traffic, the total tonnage conveyed in May, 1921, showed a decline of 21¼ million tons, or 5 per cent. compared with May, 1920, and the ton miles worked, a decrease of 70 per cent. Freight train mileage shows a reduction of 60.8 per cent. compared with May, 1920, but the decrease in coal and coke and other heavy traffic again seriously affected the operating results, although not to the same extent as in April. The average waggon and train loads were 3.72 tons and 103½ tons respectively, as compared with 5.45 tons and 134½ tons in May, 1920, and the net ton-miles worked per engine hour were 360 as against 435½ in the corresponding month of last year. The new rolling-stock completed and put into traffic during the month was 37 steam locomotives, 51 passenger carriages, and 2,160 waggons.

DEATH SENTENCES.

templated, and we shall act as we think right, no matter about the Act of Parliament. The courtmartial was specially constituted for us, but we shall not have any courtmartial, but shall have a court of our own constituted as we think right, perhaps of a lance-corporal and two privates—for thus far, commented his lordship, the argument must be put—and, further, we must fix our own punishment; we cannot be limited by any Act of Parliament. And this, his lordship went on, was to be said, although Parliament was in full session, and the Ministers of the Crown must be fully informed, from day to day, of every important event in the state of war. If the emergency was greater than was contemplated, was it not for Parliament to give further powers, or to remove the limitations? He could not assume that Parliament was in a lethargic condition. The proposition of the military authority was that there could be no limitation to the prerogative of the Crown in a state of war, even though imposed by Act of Parliament. It amounted to that. In his opinion, this proposition was inconsistent with the code of which the Restoration of Order Act was a part. This was the case of a military emergency, for which a special mode of action was provided by Parliament. To hold that, notwithstanding the Restoration of Order Act, the military authority could wave aside courts martial and sweep away the limitations as to punishment, would really involve the proposition that express legislation, which, in the existing rebellion, would not warrant the holding of military courts, would not be binding. This would be a new development of British Constitutional law, for which he could find no authority.

THE MILITARY CLAIM.

The claim of the military authority to override legislation specially made for a state of war would seem to him to call for a new Bill of Rights. But there was no warrant for any such claim. It was strictly negatived by the judgment in the case of the Keyser Hotel Company. The Master of the Rolls quoted from the judgments delivered in this case, including the judgment of Lord Atkinson, in the House of Lords. The argument based on military necessity was, the Master of the Rolls further said, pressed strongly, and he fully recognised that, in a case not touched by special legislation, it was not for the civil court to decide whether a military act was necessary or not. That must be left to the military authority. The evidence offered by the military in this case seemed to him to negative the necessity for bringing the prisoner before a military court, rather than a courtmartial. The tribunal of a courtmartial had always been regarded as absolutely fair and impartial. It was composed of honourable and high-minded gentlemen, who were scrupulously careful that every point in favour of the accused should get full weight. He had often heard it said by counsel who appeared at courts-martial that there was no fairer court in the world. In addition, there were the most precise regulations under the Army Act to regulate the procedure so that there may be no possible miscarriage of justice. In particular, the charge against the accused must be precisely formulated. Contrast that with the procedure before this military court. The charge was that the accused were improperly in possession of ammunition. What did this mean? It might mean anything, from some criminal purpose down to a mere technical irregularity. Justice required that an accused person should know exactly what he was charged with. It was procedure of the kind adopted in this case which might be calculated to lead to a miscarriage. This was exactly what the Legislature had to guard against in the suppression of insurrection, when the loyalist as well as the rebel might find himself the accused party.

THE RESTRICTIVE PROVISION.

This was the explanation of the restrictive provision of the Restoration of Order Act, specially framed so that the King's subjects might have the protection, which common law and statute law had afforded. On the ground that the Restoration of Order Act had limited the power of the military authority in the present state of war in Ireland, he must hold that the writ of habeas corpus should be issued. It was only after the most anxious consideration that he arrived at this opinion. He had on the one hand to consider the awful condition which existed at the time of the arrest and conviction—the appalling murders, conflagrations, and other outrages with which the military authority had to cope, and which called for the most drastic action. But, on the other hand, he had to keep well in mind the first principle of British law, that every subject of the King was at least entitled to be legally tried and legally convicted. He had not lost sight of the fact that in giving the judgment he did he was acting at variance with the unanimous judgment of the King's Bench Division in Allen's case, reaffirmed by subsequent decisions. He hoped that his action would not be construed as indicating any hostility to his colleagues or any over-weening opinion of himself. He fully recognised that they had a wide knowledge and experience of criminal law, and that he could not pretend to any. His practice at the Bar and his life as a judge had left him unqualified for criminal cases, and he said unfeignedly that he could not set up his opinion against the experienced learned judges of the King's Bench Division.

THE RIGHT OF THE SUBJECT.

But, as had been more than once pointed out by the Lord Chief Baron, and by the most eminent English judges, it was the right of the subject under arrest to apply to any judge of the High Court for a writ of habeas corpus, and if the writ was refused to proceed from judge to judge, and it was the duty of each judge to form his independent opinion and to act upon it. This did not mean that he was to disregard the opinion of the other judges—it was the duty of the deciding judge to take such guidance as he could from other judges—it only meant that he was not absolutely bound by them, as in ordinary cases, and that if, in his own mind, he was unable to follow them he was bound to dissent. That was his position in the present case. He might have gone grievously wrong, he might have unduly hampered the military authority in their effort to establish order in this distracted country. But he had before him the words of Chief Justice Cockburn in the Jamaica case, which were aptly quoted by Mr. Healy in Allen's case: "There are considerations more important even than shortening the temporary duration of an insurrection. Among them are the eternal and immutable principles of justice—principles which can never be violated without lasting detriment to the true interest and well-being of a civilised community." There was, added the Master of the Rolls, a question as to what day the writ was to be returnable for.

Mr. Conner, K.C., who, with Mr. Lipsett, K.C. (instructed by the Chief Crown Solicitor), appeared for the Crown, said that he had no instructions. His lordship could make any order that he liked.

The Master of the Rolls—Surely you ought to have instructions.

Mr. Conner—Perhaps I ought, but I have not.

The Master of the Rolls said that the prisoner was in Limerick. Is there, he asked, any difficulty in having him here on Friday?

Mr. Lynch said that there was not. The trains were running regularly and normally.

The Master of the Rolls asked was there anyone there on behalf of the military authorities. Was there any objection to Friday?

There being no response,

His lordship said that he would make the writ returnable for Friday. He took it that Mr. Lynch's course would be, when the prisoner was brought up, under the writ, to move for his discharge.

Mr. Lynch—If your lordship pleases, I will, certainly.

The Master of the Rolls said that of course the judgment in the other case (Patrick Higgins v. General Macready and others) would be to the same effect. He directed that the decision of the court should be telegraphed to the custodians of the prisoners.

DEMPSEY-CARPENTIER FIGHT FILM.—In the King's Bench Division yesterday, before Mr. Justice Pim, in a case of the Carlton Cinema, Ltd., Dublin, v. Albert and Arthur Claverling, Ltd., renters of Cinematograph Films, Soho square, London, Mr. Russell (instructed by Mr. T. R. Robinson) applied for liberty to serve a writ on the defendants out of the jurisdiction. He moved on hte affidavit of Mr. Jacob Ellis, managing director of the plaintiff company in Dublin, in which it was stated that on the 21st July they received a telegram from defendants offering the hire of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight film for a week, commencing 25th July, for £30. On 22nd July plaintiffs sent a telegram from Dublin to defendants accepting the offer of the film, and they telegraphed £30 to the defendants, and wrote to them on the same day. It was mentioned in connection with the offer that there was "no barring," and that, counsel explained, meant that it was not an exclusive right. A telegram was received by the plaintiffs on 22nd from defendants saying that they could not accept plaintiffs' booking, and that they were returning the money order. Plaintiffs replied that they must hold defendants to the contract, and that if the film was not delivered on the Monday immediate legal proceedings would be taken. On the 23rd the money order was returned by the defendants in a letter confirming their telegram. The Court granted the application.

POSTAL DIFFICULTIES IN KERRY.—Difficulties in the delivery of letters in part of County Kerry were mentioned in an application made to Mr. Justice Pim in the King's Bench yesterday, when Mr. P. O'C. White, in an action for goods sold and delivered, applied for liberty to serve writs on defendants by advertisement. He said that a fortnight ago they got liberty from the Master of the Rolls to serve the defendants by post in Kerry. They tried to serve them by post, but the letters were returned. "Things are different now," remarked Mr. Justice Pim. Mr. White said that one of the letters was marked undelivered, as the office was closed by the military authorities. Mr. Justice Pim—That is all changed now. Mr. White said that was not so. They had a letter from the Chief Secretary's Office Dublin Castle, dated 23rd July, stating:—"I am directed by the Lords Justices to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 22nd relative to Newtownsandes and Duagh Post Offices, County Kerry, and to state that the matter has been referred to the military authorities. It appears, however, to be unlikely that there will be sufficient time to reply before Tuesday next." Counsel said that they did not want to wait on indefinitely, and they asked for liberty to serve by local advertisements. Mr. Justice Pim—What is the nearest post office? Mr. White—Newtownsandes and Duagh. Mr. Justice Pim—Are they both closed? Mr. White—Yes. Mr. Justice Pim said that he was perfectly sure that letters would go now in some form or other to those places, and even if the post office was closed the next post office would send on the letters. They must serve them by post.

THE RECORDER'S JURISDICTION.—In the Court of Appeal yesterday, before the Lord Chancellor, Lord Justice Ronan, and Lord Justice O'Connor, the case of the King (Delany) v. the Recorder of Dublin was heard. The question for decision in this appeal was the jurisdiction of the Recorder to order that the rent be increased by a sum in respect of rates which included the Poor Rate, and, secondly, his jurisdiction to increase the rent by a sum in respect of repairs when the agreement between the landlord and tenant provides that the tenant is responsible for the repairs. In this case, and in over a hundred others, at the instance of the Artisans' Dwellings Company, the Recorder had granted increases of rent on the application of the company. At the hearing before the Recorder the counsel for the tenants questioned the Recorder's power to order increases in respect of the two items above mentioned, but the learned Recorder made the increases, holding that he had power to do so in law under the provisions of the Increase of Rent Act. Application was accordingly made to the King's Bench Division for a writ of prohibition to restrain the Recorder from issuing orders for the increases of rent. The Divisional Court (Mr. Justice Dodd, Mr. Justice Pim, and Mr. Justice Samuels) declined to grant the writ of prohibition, and the present appeal was by the tenants from the decision of the King's Bench Division, seeking to have a writ of prohibition issued on the grounds above stated. Mr. Dickie, K.C.; Mr. Wood, K.C., and Mr. W. J. Gleeson (instructed by Mr. James Brady) appeared for the appellant. Mr. Gerald Fitzgibbon, K.C.; Mr. E. A. Swayne, K.C., and Mr. E. S. Robinson (instructed by Messrs. W. G. Bradley and Sons) appeared for the respondent. Mr. Dickie, K.C., having opened the case on behalf of the appellant, Mr. Fitzgibbon, K.C., was about to address the Court on behalf of the respondent when, the Lord Chancellor intimated that the Court had considered this case, and had come to the conclusion that the Recorder had jurisdiction. The Court adopted the judgment of Mr. Justice Pim in the King's Bench Division, and to some extent the judgment of Mr. Justice Dodd, but the judgment of Mr. Justice Pim would be made the judgment of the Court.

SERVICE OF WRITS IN CLARE.—In the King's Bench Division yesterday, before Mr. Justice Pim, in the case of C. W. A. Arthur v. Charles McKeogh and others, Mr. Phelps, on behalf of the plaintiff, applied for permission to substitute service of the writ by post. It appeared from an affidavit in support of the application that the defendant was one of a number of tenants who had entered into a combination not to pay rent. The Civil Bill officer had returned the writ, stating that he could not effect service. A messenger who was sent with the writ was held up and detained until late at night, and then released, the writ being torn up. The defendant lived at O'Brien's Bridge, County Clare, eight miles from Limerick. It was quite impossible, as a result of the combination, and in the present state of the country, to serve the summonses in the ordinary way; but a registered letter would reach the defendant in due course. There were nine other applications of an exactly similar character, and a similar order was asked for in each case. Mr. Justice Pim granted the order to serve the writs by post in this and the other cases.

MARRIAGE OF MR. KENNETH DOCKRELL AND MISS F. E. M'KEEVER.

The marriage of Mr. Kenneth Dockrell, barrister-at-law, son of Sir Maurice and Lady Dockrell, and Miss Frances Elizabeth (Queenie) McKeever, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Germains McKeever, Bettystown House, Drogheda, took place at St. Ann's Church, Dublin, yesterday. The Rev. H. Brunskill, Rector of St. Mary's, Drogheda, assisted by the Rev. J. W. Crozier, Vicar of St. Ann's, performed the ceremony. The church was tastefully decorated with marguerites and shaded foliage and bamboos. There was a choral service, the clergy and choir meeting the bride at the church door, and preceding her up the aisle, singing the wedding hymn. Mr. Hopkins presided at the organ. The choir consisted of the children of the choir of the Chapel Royal and the boy choristers of St. Ann's. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a charming draped frock of parchment-white charmeuse over ninon, with sash of basket silver tissue, the long end being finished with a deep fringe of crystal beads; her train of georgette was veiled with an exquisite old cream-coloured Limerick lace shawl, arranged cornerwise; at the end of the train were silver true lovers' knots. On her head was a Juliet cap of silver lace, over which was draped a long tulle veil, fastened with a chaplet of orange blossoms, some sprays of the same flowers being tucked into her sash at the waist. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and wore a diamond brooch, the gift of the bridegroom, and was attended by two bridesmaids, wearing mauve charmeuse frocks, with petal overskirts of wisteria mauve georgette, brown lace hats, with green bands, and brown shoes and stockings. They carried posies of mauve-pink carnations, and wore jewelled pins, gifts of the bridegroom. At the conclusion of the ceremony a solo, "He shall defend me under His wings," by Sir George Martin, was sung by Master Cecil House, Winstanley Scholar, of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin.

After the ceremony Mrs. McKeever was "at home" at breakfast at the Hibernian Hotel, to the many wedding guests. She wore a graceful coat frock of indigo blue satin, over an under-dress of apricot georgette, veiled with beautiful blue silk lace, and a hat to correspond. Lady Dockrell was in a black gown, embroidered in jet crêpe-de-chine, with white lace scarf, and lace hat, with paradise plumes. After breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dockrell left by motor, en route for France, the bride wearing a dark blue coat frock, the panels embroidered in silver and rust silk, with cape lined flame-coloured silk, and a blue fancy straw hat, with lace veil.

CRICKET.

THE FOURTH TEST MATCH.

AUSTRALIANS IN A NEW ROLE.

STONE-WALLING AT OLD TRAFFORD.

MATCH DRAWN.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM.)

MANCHESTER, TUESDAY.

English cricket was vindicated at Old Trafford yesterday, when the fourth test match was drawn, much in favour of England, who successfully broke the long sequence, and actually had the opposition playing for safety throughout the day. It was a splendid achievement, and should make the concluding match at the Oval exceedingly interesting. We have seen the Australians, and admired their skill on the perfect wickets which have characterised the present summer. We have also watched their fast bowlers strike terror into the hearts of our leading batsmen under conditions exactly in keeping with their home surroundings, and have longed for a display of their prowess on a real English wicket. Yesterday the desire was granted, and, if the visitors continued to save the game, they were certainly outplayed, which goes to prove that in an ordinary English summer we should have put up a much more creditable show in the test series.

It can hardly be argued, in extenuation of the Australians' partial failure, that they had much the worst of the wicket, which was very similar to Monday's, if one excepts the strong wind which dried it gradually. Certainly Woolley could get little assistance from it, and under the circumstances, the Australians' policy of playing safe the whole day through can hardly be commended, especially from a spectacular point of view. A more wholehearted attempt at stone-walling has rarely been witnessed. It was not merely confined to one, or even two men, but was general throughout the whole side, with the dapper little Collins as a ringleader.

Many years ago—in 1899 to be exact—M. A. Noble, batting for Australia on this same Old Trafford enclosure, actually occupied the wickets for eight hours and a half, and then carried his bat for 60. Well, if Collins failed to equal that record yesterday, it was not for want of trying. Forty runs he obtained in ten minutes short of five hours, and he was then out leg before, playing a straight one from Parkin into his pads. Certainly Collins gave the fielders no encouragement, for he never looked like getting out, and he had the satisfaction of knowing that his tedious effort, if it annoyed the spectators, who cheered ironically at each scoring stroke, certainly saved his side from a possible defeat. Although the Australians were 187 runs behind, with an innings completed by each side, all chances of victory for England had then vanished, as only forty minutes remained for play. Under the circumstances, Tennyson decided to bat again, and, sending in the Lancastrians, Hallows and Parkin, they adopted an aggressive policy.

After being thwarted in his desire to declare on Monday evening, it was correctly assumed that Tennyson would close the innings at the overnight total of 362 for four wickets. This left the visitors requiring 263 to save the follow on, as in two-day matches a side leading by 100 runs have the option of enforcing the prerogative. There had been more rain in the night, but the sun was never strong enough to bake the wicket, which remained practically unchanged from Monday. Collins and Bardsley were the opening pair, and it was early evident that the Australians' policy was to play to save the game. From the outset, the bowlers took command of the situation, and in eighty minutes four wickets had been captured for 48 runs. The bowlers were Parkin and Woolley. With only nine scored, the Lancastrian broke clean through the left-hander's defence, and bowled him. Woolley sent down a succession of maiden overs from the other end, but when, at 31, Parker took the ball from Parkin he quickly disposed of the latest arrival, Macartney, who had reached 13, and the change which brought on Fender at the town end proved the undoing of Andrews and Taylor, who fell in successive overs, the first-named being out to a wretched stroke when he drove a full toss into the hands of Tennyson at mid-off. The half-century occupied ninety-five minutes, but Collins was still there at lunch with 22, Pellew being 10, and the total 69 for four.

During the period between luncheon and tea, a matter of two hours and a quarter, Collins actually increased his individual score by 18 runs, and on two occasions was half an hour without scoring. Two wickets were all that fell to England in this period, but only 91 runs were added, twenty of which were credited to extras. At one juncture, when Armstrong was patting the pitch, he was advised to "roll on it" by the occupants of the popular side. Tea was taken with the total 160 for six, but in forty minutes afterwards Parkin concluded the venture when he sent down less than seven overs for ten runs and four wickets. First, Collins made the mistake of playing a straight one with his pads, and had to go, while, with the very next ball, Carter was clean bowled. Hendry prevented the hat trick, but the fourth might have bowled him for all he knew. It most certainly did beat him. The innings thus closed for 175, after lasting five hours and twenty minutes. The bowling analysis made curious reading, no fewer than 58 of 116 overs being maidens. Parkin had the best figures, his five wickets costing only 38 runs.

Australia were 187 behind on the first innings, but, with only forty minutes remaining for play, Tennyson decided to bat again, and sent in Hallows and Parkin, who scored freely, and of 36 put on for the first wicket Parkin claimed 23. At the close the total was 44 for one wicket, and England had much the better of the drawn game. Score:—

KENT v. SURREY.

This heavy scoring match finished very tamely at Blackheath last evening. The result was a draw, but Kent took the championship points for the lead on the first innings. The latter only amounted to 16, so that Surrey accomplished a fine performance in getting so close to Kent's first total of 464. The chief credit for Surrey's response belongs to Shepherd, who followed his 212 against Lancashire at the Oval last week with a superb 210 not out. He was batting five hours and forty minutes, and only gave two chances, both of stumping, at 59 and 182, respectively. He hit one six, twenty-three fours, and five threes. Surrey's aggregate of 448 occupied six hours and a quarter. Kent went in again after lunch, but there was no further interest in the match. Score:—

LEINSTER'S ENGLISH TOUR.

MATCH AGAINST UNITED SERVICES.

When Leinster resumed their innings against the United Services at Plymouth yesterday they were 209 in arrear, with six wickets in hand. The weather remained fine and the wicket fast when Lambert and MacKay went in. From the outset Lambert played capital cricket, and it was not until the score had reached 230, and when two short of his century, that his splendid innings came to an end. He gave only one chance, to second slip when 71, and his 98 included 11 fours. Hinton showed capital form for 47, as did Guise-Brown for his 26 not out. The innings, which realised 264, lasted four hours and a half. The Services, in their second venture, scored 144 in two hours, and then declared, leaving the visitors an hour and a half to get 188 to win. Heaslip and J. V. McDonogh went cheaply, but Ganly batted freely for 74 not out, in which were a dozen fours, and at the close 118 had been scored for the loss of only two wickets. Score:—

ESSEX v. SOMERSET.

With the heavy roller on the wicket at Southend yesterday it played rather queerly for the second innings of Essex, who were set to get 222, yielded only 156 runs. At no time did they ever appear likely to accomplish the task against bowling which was cleverly managed by Daniell. Half the side were out at 65. Perrin, who came in on the fall of the third wicket at 45, batted with much skill and more confidence than anyone else, and was undefeated for 62. Only Morris and Londen gave him much assistance. Earlier in the day Somerset's second innings closed for an addition of 30, Young contributing a most valuable 69, which included eleven 4's. Score:—

	1st Inns.	2nd Inns.
Somerset	168	304
Essex	246	156

WARWICKSHIRE v. LANCASHIRE.

Batting at Edgbaston on a pitch affected to some extent by rain, Warwickshire got the 243 runs they required to win with a couple of wickets to spare. The game was brimful of interest, first one side and then the other appearing to have an advantage. When Bates (51) and Green (20) opened with 71 for the first wicket scored in 45 minutes, the star of the home county was in the ascendant. Both, however, left at the same total, and when Calthorpe was bowled with only eight added, the bowlers appeared to be getting the mastery. Then came an opportune stand by Quaife (20) and Stephens (39), which yielded 45 for the fourth wicket in half an hour. All the same six wickets had gone when the luncheon interval arrived, and still 83 runs were required. A bright partnership between Holdsworth (26) and Smart (59) pulled the game round in favour of the home county. Holdsworth played with the caution which the situation called for, whilst Smart, a natural hitter, let himself go whenever there was an opportunity and aroused a great deal of enthusiasm with strokes to the boundary. The pair put on 73 in 45 minutes. In compiling his highest score in county cricket Smart occupied only 50 minutes, and hit eight 4's. Only five runs were required when he left and these Howell got. Score:—

	1st Inns.	2nd Inns.
Lancashire	119	279
Warwickshire	156	243 (8 wkts.)

NOTTS v. YORKSHIRE.

At Trent Bridge yesterday Yorkshire gained a victory over Notts by an innings, with 48 runs to spare, this being their sixth successive win in the County Championship. Rain fell sharply during the night and affected the pitch, which played awkwardly before lunch, but, strangely, it was when the wicket had dried that Notts fared worst. They entered upon the last stage 196 in arrears with all their wickets intact. Rhodes, however, bowled with such effect that three batsmen were dismissed for an additional 34, but then John Gunn (46) and Hardstaff (32) made a determined stand, and put on 78 for the fourth wicket in rather more than an hour. At lunch the total stood at 184 for four wickets. Subsequently Notts collapsed so completely that all the remaining wickets fell in the course of forty minutes' cricket for 32 runs. Whysall played well for 19, and Richmond made some passable strokes; but all the others were helpless against Waddington, whose figures after lunch read, five wickets for 17 runs. Score:—

Notts	174	216
Yorkshire	*438 (9)

NORTHANTS v. GLAMORGAN.

Left in a hopeless position overnight, being 325 behind with only three wickets in hand, Glamorgan were beaten at Northampton yesterday by 244 runs. Score:—

Northants	232	*364 (9)
Glamorgan	137	215

PHŒNIX v. UNIVERSITY COLLEGE.

Postponed from Saturday, this League match was played yesterday on the Phœnix ground, and resulted in a heavy defeat for the visitors. The 'Varsity went in first, and made an auspicious start, Francis and R. L. Donovan scoring 50 for the first wicket, Francis being then bowled by Warren for a merry 18. Donovan left at the same total, and then followed a collapse, three more wickets falling for the addition of only 27 runs. W. Cussen and Hogan attempted to check the collapse, but at 95 were separated, and in an hour and thirty-five minutes the innings closed for 127, Evers having the fine bowling analysis of 4 for 15. Kidd and C. S. Wallis opened the Phœnix innings, and put on 57, and then Buttanshaw assisted Kidd to advance the score to 93, and when the third wicket fell only 15 runs were required. The visitors' total was passed with Kidd and Masservy together, but at 185 the first-named was easily held by Hogan off one of the few bad strokes which he made during his stay of an hour and forty minutes. His 125 was an uncommonly good innings, and included a six and thirteen fours. When 24 he gave a chance of stumping. Francis, however, missed the ball, but put the wickets down, and the umpire promptly gave the batsman out. It was a mistake on the part of the umpire, and the 'Varsity captain intervening Kidd came out and resumed his knock. Eventually the total was carried to 213 for 5 wickets, Masservy being not out with a finely played 34 to his credit. Score:—

The notes are unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Mexican Eagle Oil Company. They are repayable at par on 30th June, 1933, with the option to the company to repay on 30th June, 1927, at 101 p.c. on three months' notice. No debentures can be created to rank before the notes. The Chairman of the company, in a letter to Messrs. The net profit for 1920 was £317,957, and when the whole of the fleet is in commission the net profit will be £915,000. The interest on the notes requires £210,000. The price paid for the notes was £93 and £94, and the underwriting was quickly done at 1½ p.c. A form which should be used by our readers will be found attached to the prospectus on page 7. The list will close on or before Wednesday, August 3.

PRIZE-WINNERS AT THE CO. KILDARE HUNT SHOW.

Mr. R. F. Kearney, of Mullacash House, Naas, writes to say that in our report of the County Kildare Hunt Show we erroneously stated that his special prize for the best colt foal by his stallion, Sourdlestown, was won by Mr. B. H. Barton. Mr. Kearney's special prize was won by Colonel R. St. Leger Moore, C.B., Killashee, Naas, with a bay colt foal out of Mons, which also carried off primary honours for the best colt foal in the show. Mrs. Eric Watkinson, Moatfield House, Sallins, was awarded Mr. Kearney's other prize for the best filly foal, which also secured the "Red Rosette" for the best filly foal in the show.

Reuter's Agency is informed that Behboud Djemanchi, former Minister of the Interior of the Azerbaidjan Republic, who arrived in Constantinople at the head of the Azerbaidjan Commercial Delegation, has been shot dead as he was leaving a theatre. The assassin has been detained.

THE FLY NUISANCE.

The long spell of warm weather has caused a vast increase in the numbers of the insect population, especially of the domestic fly, which has this summer invaded many houses hitherto exempt from his unwelcome attentions. A very effective way of abating the fly nuisance, and at the same time maintaining the health of the home, is by spraying all rooms with a solution of Jeyes' Fluid several times a day, and by regularly flushing the drains and washing the larder shelves with the same liquid. Jeyes' Fuid is a strong disinfectant and keeps disease, as well as flies, at a safe distance.

GENTLEMEN,—With reference to the Notes for £3,000,000 which have been acquired from this Company by Cia Mexicana de Petroleo "El Aguila," S.A. (the Mexican Eagle Oil Company, Ltd.) at par and sold by it to you, which Notes you contemplate offering to the public, I beg to give you the following information with respect to the Company:—

The Eagle Oil Transport Company, Ltd., was registered on the 29th of February, 1912, for the purpose, inter alia, of building, purchasing, or otherwise acquiring tank steamers to be used for the transport of oil and of carrying on the business of ship-owners and general carriers by land and water.

The authorised and issued Share Capital of the Company is £5,000,000, divided into 400,000 Cum. 6 per cent. Part. Pref. Shares of £5 each, fully paid, and 600,000 Ordinary Shares of £5 each paid up to the extent of £2,200,000, the unpaid balance of £800,000 on the Ordinary Shares being payable by the 31st December, 1921.

There are statutory ships mortgages in favour of the builders for £297,000. There are no Debentures or Debenture Stock.

The Company's fleet delivered and on order will have a total capacity of 436,000 tons deadweight. Of this amount 26 steamers, having a total deadweight capacity of 317,000 tons, have been delivered, and are to-day in commission (of which 229,000 tons deadweight were in commission in 1920), and 11 steamers, having a deadweight capacity of 119,000 tons, are on order. Of the latter 35,000 tons deadweight should be delivered before 31st December, 1921, and the balance in 1922. It is estimated that the net first cost to the company of the total fleet when delivered will be approximately £9,500,000.

All the above steamers have been chartered from the date of delivery by the Mexican Eagle Oil Company. The charter of vessels built prior to 1919 terminates on 31st December, 1930, and the charter of the remainder on 31st December, 1938.

The charter party provides for payment for the hire of the vessels being made in advance by the Oil Company to the Transport Company in London at a rate which should yield a minimum return of 8 per cent. per annum on the cost of the vessels, in addition to 5 per cent. per annum depreciation on such cost.

The profits of the Company according to the audited accounts for the year to 31st December, 1920, subject to Corporation Profits Tax, amounted to £473,201, of which there was transferred to depreciation £155,244, leaving a net profit of £317,957.

When the entire fleet is in commission it is estimated that the annual profits will amount to	£1,390,000
Deduct annual depreciation of 5 per cent. on cost of steamers	£475,000
Net	£915,000
To pay 7 per cent. on £3,000,000 Notes requires	£210,000

Practically the whole of the proceeds of the Notes will be used to cover the cost of tank steamers which have been built or are on order in this country.

The Notes will be unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Mexican Eagle Oil Company, which has an issued Share Capital of $129,327,610 (Mexican gold). The divisible profits of that Company for the year ended 30th June, 1920, exceeded £5,000,000, and we have been officially informed that the earnings for the year ended 30th June, 1922, will be not less than those for the previous year.

Yours faithfully,
CLIVE PEARSON, Chairman.

The Agreement guaranteeing the Notes as to principal and interest is embodied in a Contract dated 26th July, 1921, made between the Eagle Oil Transport Company, Limited, of the first part; Compania Mexicana de Petroleo "El Aguila" Sociedad Anonima (Mexican Eagle Oil Company), of the second part, and the London City and Midland Executor and Trustee Company, Limited (as Trustee for the Holders of the Notes), of the third part. The Mexican Eagle Oil Company has guaranteed the payment of (a) a dividend of 6 per cent. per annum on the 400,000 Cumulative 6 per cent. Participating Preference Shares of £5 each, fully paid, of this Company, and (b) the principal and interest on $1,000,000 United States Gold Ten-Year 6 per cent. Gold Debentures (maturing 1st July, 1922) of the Oil Fields of Mexico Company.

The price payable by Messrs. Higginson and Company to the Mexican Eagle Oil Company for the Notes now being offered is 93 per cent. for Registered and 94 per cent. for Bearer Notes. Messrs. Higginson and Company are paying 1½ per cent. underwriting commission brokerage and the expenses of this offer, including advertising.

A brokerage of 10/- per cent. will be paid in respect of accepted applications bearing a broker's or agent's stamp.

Application will in due course be made to the Committee of the London Stock Exchange for permission to deal and for an official quotation.

Application should be made on the form below, or those accompanying the particulars of the Offer for Sale, and forwarded, with a cheque for the application money, to the London Joint City and Midland Bank, Ltd., 5 Threadneedle street, E.C. 2, or to any of its Branches.

If any application be accepted for less than the full amount applied for, the surplus amount paid on application will be appropriated towards the amount payable on acceptance, and any balance will be returned; and, where any application is not accepted, the deposit will be returned in full. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render all instalments previously paid liable to forfeiture, and the acceptance to cancellation.

Thomas Cooper and Company, 21 Leadenhall street, E.C. 3, at any time during business hours whilst the list is open.

IRISH STOCK EXCHANGES.

DUBLIN.

UNDERLYING STRENGTH. FUNDS, RAILS BANK STOCK, TRAMS, DRAPERY, AND PARENT TYRES ALL BETTER.

There was another disappointing day's business on 'Change yesterday outside Government Stocks, but the prevailing trend of prices on the other hand was favourable, with indications of more strength, even this side of the August bank holidays. The Funds were good, with Consols and War Loans in good demand, outside a big business in National War Bonds, which are in much favour. More support appeared in the Bank Section, especially for Bank of Ireland Stock. Breweries and Distilleries were firm. Marconis were neglected. Home Rails were buyers, and the repetition of the 2 p.c. per annum interim dividend by the Midland Great Western Company increased confidence. Increased bids were often ineffectually made for Baronial Guaranteed shares. Dublin United Tram Ord. again advanced. There was an awakening of interest in Parent Tyre shares, but when support was offered, even at an advance, the supply, as usual, dried up. The Deferred, Ord. and Pref. all improved. Dunlop Rubbers were easy. Johnston Bakery shares were in strong demand on the increased interim dividend—i.e., 8 against 5 p.c. per annum a year ago. Drapery shares were better. Coats were harder for a few shares.

The Funds were very busy. Consols rose ⅛ to 48¼, War Loan 5 p.c. ⅛ to 88⅛, ditto 4 p.c. ⅛ to 96⅛, and Funding Loan 1/16 to 71⅛. Irish Land 3 p.c. repeated 52 1/16.

Among Banks, which closed firm, Bank of Ireland rose 1½ to 205½ x.d., and Nationals rallied ⅛ to 17, while Munster and Leinsters remain at 5⅜.

In Breweries, etc., Guinness repeated 39⅛, and Dublin Distillers Ord. 37s. 6d., while John Power and Son Pref. Participating shares were nominally unaltered at 19s., 19s. 6d.

Home Rails again showed up well. Dublin and South-Eastern rose ⅜ to 16⅜, Great Southern ½ to 52½, and Great Northern Pref. ⅜ to 54⅛. Midland Great Western repeated 24, and the 4 p.c. Pref. 40. Great Southern Debs. were ineffectually bid up ⅛ to 66½. The stock did not seem to offer under about 70. South Clare Baronial rose 30s. to 70s.

In Trams, Dublin United Ord. rose ⅛ to 7⅛.

Parent Tyres were in some request. The Ord. rallied 3d. to 13s. 3d., the Defd., 2s. to 35s. 6d. from last marking, while the Pref. closed a few pence better at 10s. 1½d., 10s. 3d. Dunlop Rubber Ord. were 10s. 7½d.

In Bakery shares, Johnston Ord. were bid up 1/16 to 3½, but the price did not secure any shares.

Drapery shares closed quietly firm. Crowe Wilson Ord. rose 3d. to 21s., and Switzer Deb.. ¼ to 5¼.

As regards Manufacturing shares, Coats rose 6d. to 49s. 6d., and Brunner Mond 7½ p.c. Pref. 1s. 6d. to 22s. 6d., British American Tobacco closed unaltered about 68s. 3d.

In Miscellaneous securities Consolidated Goldfields realised 17s. 6d. Dublin Port and Docks Board 6 p.c. issues of 1923-4-5 all fetched 95½. Imperial Tobacco were firm at 49s. 9d., Mexican Eagle Oils realised 5 7/32, the New 5 7/32, and Shells 5⅛, 1/16.

Conversion Loan 3½ p.c. redeemable stock fell 1/16 to 62 11/16.

STOCKS FOR INVESTMENT.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

Investment business on the Stock Exchange has received quite a fillip. A good deal of money taken from deposit at the banks is being invested in first-rate English stocks and good Colonial issues. Corporation stocks are being especially favoured in this connection, particularly the more recent 6 per cent. issues, and, as a result, a very considerable volume of business was transacted yesterday in this section of the house. Most of these stocks went about ¼ higher on the day, and some enjoyed a bigger margin of appreciation. Stoke Sixes advanced ½ to 98¼, and one leading firm of jobbers admitted that they had been caught short of stock. Wallasey rose ⅜ to 98¼, and there was a rise of ½ in Rotterham to 98, and Gateshead to 98¼. Among similar issues, advances of a point were recorded in Plymouth Threes to 54, Portsmouth Threes to 70, and Hereford County 2½ per cent. to 66½, of ½ in Birkenhead Sixes to 101, Norwich Fives to 79½, Liverpool 5½ per cent. to 95¼, South Shields Sixes to 98¼, and of ¼ in Birmingham 5½ per cent. to 95¾, and Cardiff to 99¼.

LONDON STOCKS UNDER HOLIDAY INFLUENCES.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

On the London Stock Exchange the markets appeared to be settling down for the holidays, and it is doubtful whether much more business will be done until Monday is over. Business yesterday was of a retail character, and price changes were of small importance. There was, however, a continued inquiry for some of the investment stocks, but it was not sufficient to influence quotations to any extent. Japanese Bonds were strong on the downward course of the New York exchange rate. Argentines were maintained, but not improved. Consols were supported, and a rise of 1/16 to 48 7/16 was recorded. The 5 p.c. War Loan also rose 1/16 to 88⅛. Funding Loan at 71⅛ was ⅛ higher, and the Conversion Loan at 63 1/16 advanced ⅛. India 7 p.c. was 1/16 up at 104 1/16. Among the new issues, South Australia was par, Tasmania ⅛ premium, and New Zealand 2¼ premium.

In Foreign Government Securities, Argentines were firm, and the 5 p.c. (1907) improved a point to 72½. Among Brazilians, the 4 p.c. (1889) was a point better at 47. Egyptian Unified rose ½ to 64, while Japanese 4½ p.c. gained a point at 121. Uruguay 3½ p.c. fell 2 points to 48.

Home Rails were comparatively animated, but the market was uncertain, and there were a number of falls on the day. Great Central fell ¼ to 4⅞, while Great Western was ½ down at 68. Lancashire and Yorkshire fell a point to 49, and London and North-Western ½ to 70. South-Eastern Def. and Midland Def. each fell ½ to 21½ and 44, respectively. On the other hand, Central London rose a point to 49, Great Eastern ¼ to 27½, North-Eastern Consols ½ to 73½, South-Eastern Elec. Pref. a point to 61½, and Underground Elec. Inc. Bonds ¼ to 79.

"Canpacs," in Foreign Rails, advanced 1 to 157, but Grand Trunks were devoid of interest. Argentine Great Western Ord. was a point down to 44, but Buenos Ayres Great Southern was ¼ up to 53, Pacific ½ to 37½, and Centrals ½ to 51. San Paulo Ord., however, fell 1 to 111, and United Havana ½ to 58.

INDUSTRIALS IN THE DOLDRUMS

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

An idle and uninteresting time was experienced in the Miscellaneous and Industrial market yesterday, genuine business being in negligible proportions, and professional dealings indicating no change from the attitude of indifference lately assumed by the jobbers. In small parcels some of the more marketable issues were being liquidated, presumably to meet personal taxation charges. Otherwise the bulk of quotations were left at previous levels in the absence of a test. In Iron and Steels, the downward tendency was not so marked, but among the declines were Hadfields at 21s. 6d., despite the dividend; B. S. A., which were further retarded, to 7s. 6d., and Guest Keen 1s. lower at 30s. Other dull spots were Ebbw Vale at 14s. 6d. and Cargo Fleet at 13s., while Brunner Mond were a few pence easier at 24s. Chinese Engineering, however, stiffened to 4 7/16, while Vickers (11s. 6d.) and Armstrongs (16s.) were steady at the lower levels. In the Shipping section, Cunards eased a shade to 18s. 6d., as also Furness Withy at 23s. P. and O. Deferred were on the dull side at 348, but elsewhere quotations were merely stationary. Pekins recovered 6d. to 10s. 6d. in the Land section, Deccans hardening to 1⅛. Sudan Plantations, however, were dull at 2⅜ on the interim dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum for the half year just ended; Bovril Def. were maintained at the improved price of 13s. 9d. J. Lyons continued in demand, hardening again to 2 7/16. Margarine issues, however, were dull, Van Den Berghs losing 1/16 at 2 and Maypoles easing to 7s. 3d. Textiles, though dull in tone, showed few declines, Courtaulds being maintained at 38s., as also Amalgamated Cottons at 13s. 9d.; while British Dyestuffs Ord. were a harder market at 1s. 4d. Crosses and Winkworth Pref., however, fell off to 16s. 6d. Bleachers receded to 1 7/16. Additional consideration of the Marine results lent no big support to the Wireless group, where Marconis were dull at 2⅛, or 1/16 lower, and the Pref. similarly altered to that figure. In Cables, Eastern hardened to 162½ ex-div., and Globes to 17. Western closed to 16⅛. Bank shares renewed their upward course. Among Home institutions Lloyds rose 6d. to 47s. x.d., Barclays "B" were better at 42s. 6d.; while L. C. W. and Parrs put on ¼ at 14¼ x.d. Oversea houses hardened in the case of Chartered of India at 15, and Standard of South Africa at 10⅛. A further fall occurred in Watney Combe Reid Def., the quotation relapsing to 140½, a fall of 4. Other Breweries stagnated, but in the Hotel list, Carlton Pref. were a better market at 5⅛, Frederick Hotels Ord. being unaffected by the dividend at 6s. In Miscellaneous issues, British Oil and Cake developed weakness, receding another 6d. to 27s. 6d. African and Eastern were offered, closing 36s. 9d., but Lever issues were maintained with the 8 per cent. Pref. harder at 15s. 10½d. Magadi Soda were a good market up to 10s. 3d., and Borax Def. hardened up a little to 29s. 6d. Dunlops fell to 10s. 4½d. Tobaccos were steady, Imperials closing a few pence harder at 49s. 9d.

MINING MARKET MAKES A POOR SHOWING.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

The Stock Exchange had evidently made up its mind that the current week would be productive of very little business, and so far events have fully justified the assumption. The Mining market made a poor showing yesterday. Kaffirs were quite out of favour, and with only one exception prices where altered were lower. A recovery of 2d. to £5 4s. 10d. per oz. passed unnoticed in the price of gold, and Paris remained indifferent. No support was forthcoming from the Cape. A little offering of Central Mining on a market devoid of buyers reduced the price to 6 7/16, while Government Mines, City Deep, and Anglo-American Corporation also suffered from lack of support. All told, the movements on balance numbered a dozen, and it is quite safe to say that a great deal more interest was taken in the Stewards' Cup than in the course of values. Closing prices:—

OIL SHARES IDLE.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

No improvement in business was reported in the Oil Share market yesterday, where for the most part things were very idle. There was the same irregularity in price movements again yesterday, with the leaders generally a little better on balance, except in the case of Burmahs, which were still dull, suffering from the same influences as were referred to yesterday. Indo-Burmahs made the only movement of special account, rising to 9s. bid, at which they showed a gain of 2s. on the day. This improvement was explained by a report in the market that some favourable news had been received by the company, but nothing more definite could be learned. Tankers were erratic, moving about as high as 8s. 6d., but subsequently declining to just above Monday's closing price. Closing prices:—

RUBBER SHARES DEPRESSED.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The Rubber Share market continued to be affected by the weakness of the price of the raw material, and the many unfavourable reports issued by the producing companies. The general tendency was to lower prices, due to the almost complete absence of public support. Pataling rose 2s. 6d. to 18s. 9d., and Tali Ayer 2s 4½d. to 14s. 10½d. These were the only important advances on the day. There were many falls, but mostly of small sums. Langen Java, however, fell 1s. 10½d., Labu 1s., Rubber Trust 1s., Sialang 1s. 3d., Telegoredjo 1s. 3d., and Tandjong 10½d. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

No surprise will be felt at the intimation of the directors of the Manchester Ship Canal Company that, owing to the general trade depression and the coal strike, the net receipts for the past half-year show a substantial reduction. Six months ago, after paying £37,143 on the Corporation Preference Stock, £199,994 (representing 5 per cent.) was paid on the Preference and £187,547 (also representing 5 per cent.) was distributed on the Ordinary, leaving to be carried forward £44,309. Under all the circumstances, it is too much to expect that the ground lost in the first half of this year can be regained in the second, with the result that the Ordinary Shares are not likely to enjoy the same dividend as last year.

All the underwriting arrangements of the South Metropolitan Gas issue of £600,000 Ten-year Debentures, to be offered at 97 per cent., have been completed, and the prospectus may be expected at any moment. The issue was to have been brought out earlier in the month, but it was postponed owing to the appearance of the new Government Loan. As soon as the period expires for exercising the option rights, this and other new issues may be expected to appear.

German textile companies are enjoying the greatest boom in their history. All spinning and weaving mills report having sold their output until the end of the year, and many mills refuse to take orders for next year. Germany excepted, the Continental textile industries are in a disastrous condition. The Alsace and Lodz mills are hampered by wages disputes, and 150,000 hands are idle, and Italy's industry is paralysed by having bought enormous quantities of American cotton at double the present price. In Germany prices for yarn and cloth are rising, and this has stimulated every branch. Retail houses and big general stores have given enormous orders, the clothing industry is fully occupied, and orders are being refused. Competition from France is excluded by the present high level of the franc exchange.

THE MONEY MARKET.

DAILY LOANS MORE WANTED.

Bank Rate (changed July 21, 1921) ...... 5½ p.c.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

There was little appreciable change in short loans, but daily money was, if anything, rather more wanted at the opening. Most borrowers, however, got what they wanted at 3½ p.c., while at the close the rate fell off to 3 p.c. The tendency of the Discount market was a trifle harder, mainly because the banks were inclined to do less. There was, however, a fair inquiry for second-hand Treasuries at 4 7/16 p.c., and a small business was done in the later-dated bills.

The price of gold was 2d. higher at 114s. 10d. per oz. fine. Bar silver was unaltered for cash at 38⅛d. per oz., and ⅛d. lower for forward delivery at 38⅛d. per oz.

Compared with the late rates of Monday night, most of the Continental centres moved favourably to London. New York opened at 3.56⅞, but gradually came up, and on balance was a small fraction better, and this looked responsible for a small improvement in French and Belgian francs. Italian lire, though, were uncertain. The three Scandinavians were giving way, so far as kroner are concerned, and Spanish pesetas took another turn adverse to Spain. The Brazilian milreis recovered 1/16. The Hong Kong dollar reflected yesterday's rise in silver.

Preference Stock, 4 per cent. per annum on the 4 per cent. Preference Stock, and 4 per cent. per annum on the 4 per cent. Preference (Rent Charge) Stock of the company, respectively, for the half-year ended 30th June, 1921, be paid (less income tax) on 1st September next to the proprietors who were registered at the closing of the transfer books on the 16th instant. RICHARD EVANS AND CO., HAYDOCK COLLIERIES.—Profit for the year ended March amounted, with £3,674 brought forward, to £78,181. The directors have allocated £15,306 for depreciation, and recommend a final dividend of 3 per cent., making, with the interim dividend, 8 per cent., free of tax, for the year, carrying forward £5,297.

BRITISH NORTH BORNEO TRUST.—Revenue for year to 30th June was £14,462. After providing for all expenses and for depreciation of office furniture and fixtures, there remains £9,435, plus £2,565 brought forward, making £12,000, which the directors, in view of uncertain conditions at present prevailing, have decided to carry forward, subject to income tax and corporation tax. Profit on sales of securities amounted to £6,655, which has been written off cost of investments. Valuation made on 30th June, 1921, of investments, after taking into account reserve fund and balance of profit and loss account carried forward, shows considerable depreciation.

LONDON WOOL SALES.

Catalogues comprising 10,723 bales wool, consisting of 6,566 bales on account of the British-Australian Wool Realisation Association and 4,157 bales free wool, were brought forward last evening. There was a full attendance of buyers and active competition, without any quotable alteration in price.

AUSTRALIAN WOOL SALES.

At the wool sales at Sydney on Monday 6,592 bales were offered, of which 5,499 were sold. Private sales totalled 729 bales. Best merinos were irregular. Other sorts showed no change. Demand generally was good, the Continent being the principal buyer. Yorkshire operated chiefly in crossbreds, finer grades of which were firm. Inferior lots were irregular. The highest price for greasy merino was 20½d. At the sales yesterday 6,030 bales were offered, of which 5,177 were sold. Private sales totalled 1,007. Best merinos remained weaker, while other grades were firm, and in good demand. Coarse crossbreds were not sought. The highest price realised for greasy merino was 21d.

SHELL-MEX. COMPANY'S NEW OILS.

In putting "Shell" motor lubricating oils on the market the Shell-Mex. Company has departed from its conservative policy. It is claimed that the oils introduce an entirely new standard of lubrication. They are being marketed in a number of grades suitable for all types of motor engines, from a "scooter" to a Rolls-Royce, and from a char-a-banc to a lorry. The oils are obtainable in 5-gallon drums as well as in cans. "Shell Ready-Reference to Correct Lubrication" is an attractive booklet describing the oils, and giving in handy form a complete table of the various cars, with their correct grades. A copy of this booklet will be sent post free on application to Shell-Mex, Limited, Shell Corner, Kingsway, London, W.C. 2.

REVENUE RETURN.

A FAVOURABLE SHOWING.

Once again the weekly Revenue return makes a favourable showing, the total income of the week amounting to £29,095,869, exceeding the expenditure by £9,808,975. Towards the Revenue, Excise contributed £8,615,000, income tax £7,056,000, E.P.D. £4,000,000, Customs £3,801,000, and the Post Office £1,250,000. Of the expenditure of £19,286,894, the Supply Services claimed £16,544,250, and interest on War Debt absorbed £2,294,174. A further £11,285,000 has been taken off the floating debt, thereby reducing the latter to £1,352,661,000. On ways and means account, £22,500,000 has been repaid to the Bank of England, but the advances by public departments have been increased by £12,300,000.
